INCOME TAX UPHELD.

But by a Divided United States Supreme Court,

Incomes From Rents and State and Municipal Bonds Exempted--Otherwise the Law Stands as Passed.

WASHINGTON, D C, April 6—The United States supreme court, in the income tax case has reversed the decision of the lower court, but the income tax as a whole is upheld, but only by a divided court Two important portions of the law, however, have been decided to be unconstitutional and they are so serious as to affect materially not only the revenues of the government, but the estimation in which the income tax will be held by the people

Under the decision to be handed down by the court it is said all incomes derived from rents are exempted from taxation by the federal government, and all incomes derived from state and municipal bonds are similarly exempted. In other respects the income tax law stands as it was passed last August, but the result of the consultations in the supreme court shows very conclusively that the law can easily be picked to pieces, provided suits are brought to contest each particular point as it comes up.

It is a curious fact, but none the less true, that the law which was passed at the dictation of the populistic wing of a democratic congress has been distorted by the decision of the United States supreme court, clearly on constitutional grounds, in such a way that it will absolutely protect the class of capitalists most offensive to the populistic element The landlords of the country will pay no income tax The owners of bonds of almost any kind, either federal, state, county or municipal, will also be free, while the business man, the manufacturer and the salaried employe will for the present at least be compelled to contribute to the treasury of the United States government 2 per cent of all incomes in excess of $4,000 per annum.

The first meeting of the supreme court was held March 16, two days after the conclusion of the arguments but no decision was reached and it was not until March 30 that they succeeded in agreeing upon the outlines of the decision covering the opinion of the lower court

The court was evenly divided. Justice Jackson was too ill to take part. Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Field, Gray and Brewer were opposed to the law. Justices Harlan, Brown, Shiras and White voted to sustain the law.

The expectation among members of the court is that the decision will be rendered Monday in open court, but there is also a possibility that the court may again split up into irreconcilable sections and hold up the decision. If the next congress does not repeal the law, with the sanction of the president, there will be a sudden rise in the price of all local public securities, as well as of all real estate, for, as they will be exempted from taxation, they ought to get the benefit of the 2 per cent. which other income producers are obliged to account for.

END OF TWO LIVES.

Carlo Enrico Reta and His Wife Commit Suicide.

The Dead Bodies Found in a Hotel Room, Pierced Through the Heart With Bullets.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6—Late yesterday afternoon the bodies of Carlo Enrico Reta and his wife, of Buka Hourse, were found dead in bed in a room of the Palace hotel, which they had entered about 2 p. m. A pistol of small calibre was found and a bullet hole over the heart of each told how they went out of the world together clasped in each others arms. Carlo Enrico Reta, "Lieut of the 17th Casart cavalry," arrived in this city nine months ago.

He had no means of earning a livlihood except by the instructions in the Italian language. This is how he became acquainted with Adele Wolf, the girl who was found dead at his side His love was reciprocated by his pupil but her mother refused to entertain any idea of marriage. Reta's family in Italy is a wealthy one but the young man himself had little money.

THE GANG ESCAPES.

Dover Train Robbers Give Their Pursuers the Slip.

In Their Flight They Stop at a Baptist Parsonage, Rob the Occupants and Kill the Preacher.

HENDESSEY, Okla, April 6—Three of the Dover train robbers are still at large. One has disappeared and is supposed to have died from the effects of wounds received at the hands of the United States marshals Thursday. His body is believed to have been secreted or buried by his pals. Last evening the remainder of the gang escaped from the brush, where they were surrounded by a number of deputies, and made their way to the house of Rev. Godfrey, a Baptist preacher, and demanded their supper. After obtaining it they robbed the preacher of money and valuables, took two of his best horses and rode away.

After the robbers had gone Mr. Godfrey mounted another horse and started in pursuit of the outlaws His body was found this morning about five miles from his home, riddled with bullets. The farmers have organized a posse of about 100 and, with deputy marshals, are giving the outlaws a close chase They are now in the Gloss mountains, where good hiding places can be found If the posse can locate them there is not the slightest doubt but that they will be strung to the nearest tree Mr Godfrey leaves a wife and several children.

SUNDAY BASE BALL.

Mayor Oakley Will Likely Put a Stop to It.

A Gentleman Who Knows Whereof He Speaks Says the Colonel Has Already Said "No."

Just now there seems to be considerable doubt as to whether the present city administration will allow Sunday games of base ball in Fort Wayne In fact, it is pretty generally understood by those in a position to know, that Mayor Oakley and the police will not allow games to be played on the Sabbath at Lakeside park

From the printed schedule of games for Fort Wayne several of the dates occur on Sunday, the management of the league evidently taking it for granted that there will be no objection upon the part of Mayor Oakley In this, however, it is thought they have made a mistake, for a Fort Wayne citizen who says he knows whereof he speaks declares that no base ball will be allowed in Fort Wayne on Sunday, this summer, at least

A SENTINEL representative interviewed Mayor Oakley and Chief of Police Liggett on the matter this morning but both gentlemen declined to state what course they would pursue in the matter. Their silence, however, is taken as an indication that Sunday base ball will not be allowed.

Mayor Oakley volunteered the information that the base ball people had not been to see him about the matter and, considering the fact that Sunday games are against the law, he thought it rather strange that they have not been to see him

R R Rossington, of the board of safety, was asked what he knew about the matter and said: "This is the first time I have heard the question raised but I certainly do not believe Sunday games will be allowed."

Charles Bash, also of the board of safety, was seen, and asked his views in the matter "I have not given the question much thought so far, but I am opposed to Sunday base ball," said he

A FATHER'S CRIME.

Cut Off the Head of His Own Darling Son.

After a Week's Search Officers Find the Demented Man Coolly Awaiting Their Coming.

CLINTON, Iowa, April 6—August Swansen, who, on March 30, cut off his seven-year old son's head with a hatchet, was discovered last night coolly leaning up against the city hall building. Officers easily arrested him. He said he did not want them to take the child from him and so killed it. Afterwards he paddled across the Mississippi and went to DeKalb. He will be taken before the commissioners of insanity.

MONROEVILLE GOSSIP.

Personal Mention of People Known in Fort Wayne.

The following personal news of interest to a number of readers is taken from this week's issue of the Monroeville Breeze.

"A. Martin, formerly of this place, now located at Fort Wayne, and engaged in the livery business in that city, was in town Saturday last.

"Frank Davis, formerly of this place, now located in business at Audubon, Iowa, was in town this morning paying his brother, Henry, and family a short visit He was accompanied by his brother, J. B Davis, of Fort Wayne.

"Our esteemed citizen J. B. Niezer, is nursing a badly bruised and sprained wrist, sustained by breaking through the board sidewalk on South street, in front of the Engle property. As the board broke he fell and in endeavoring to catch himself fell upon his arm. He is, however, at his post of duty at his elevator. Mrs C P. Mitchell also sustained a heavy fall Tuesday last by being tripped by a loose board in the sidewalk in front of the property owned by Joshua Magner, on Elm street"

Mrs Limecooley, a young woman recently divorced from her husband, was sent to jail for eleven days for being drunk last night. She was arrested in company with a young man who gave his name as Randall. The couple had been to New Haven in a buggy and were driving the horse entirely too fast to suit the police. Randall was bailed out. The name he gave was fictitious.

STARCH WORKS BURNED

Over $200,000 Worth of Property Destroyed.

One Watchman is Missing and is Supposed to Have Been Burned to Death.

COLUMBUS, Ind, April 6—The American Starch works, with buildings covering ten acres, was burned today. The plant was being run night and day on account of a rush. In the dry room, on the fourth floor, the flames were first discovered. The water mains in the building were disabled because they could not be reached, the pipes being burnt off weakening the pressure from without. In fifty minutes from the time the flames were discovered the building was a wreck, and $200,000 had gone up in smoke.

The building was owned and operated by the Mooneys, well known tanners. The amount of insurance so far as can be ascertained, was $85,000. Seventy five tons of corn were destroyed. One watchman is missing and is supposed to be burned. Another had a narrow escape The works were owned by the Mooneys in Louisville and Cincinnati and were not in the trust

SMITH RATING COMPANY

Place the Responsibility For Quotations on the Merchants.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

DEAR SIR—We notice the following article in your issue yesterday.

"Smith's mercantile report of Fort Wayne, has just been issued by a home company. It contains about 10,000 names of Fort Wayne people. Much complaint reaches us of the injustice it does many of our people."

We ask for space for a brief reply The Smith Credit Rating company is responsible for the compilation and publication of the mercantile report, they are not, however, responsible for the ratings. These are furnished them by their subscribers, all merchants of Fort Wayne. The credit rating of each person furnished by any merchant is based upon that merchant's opinion of the person rated, and that opinion rests upon the merchant's knowledge of the individual, gained through actual business transactions with him.

In any work of this character and magnitude, containing as it does over 27 000 names instead of 10,000, as stated in your article, it would be strange indeed if some inaccuracies had not occured by reason of which injustice may have been done some one

For all such inaccuracies we have nothing but sincere regret and an earnest desire to do all we can to correct them. For the purpose of remedying such inaccuracies, we expect soon to issue to merchants using the book a "change sheet," which will contain corrections of ratings, which a careful investigation has shown to be unjust and to which our attention has been called Yours truly.

SHE STOLE BONNETS.

Sensational Arrest of a North Side Married Lady.

Thought to be a Kleptomaniac and Was Not Locked Up--The Goods Recovered.

On Wednesday of last week Mrs Cora Jones, who keeps a millinery establishment at No 212 Calhoun street, missed one of her fine $15 pattern hats and immediately suspected that she had been the victim of a shop lifter

Mrs. Jones had waited on a number of ladies that afternoon, but could hardly remember who all had been in the store, and so she had no clue to work on. She reported the loss to the police and a careful investigation was begun.

On the Friday following two more fine pattern hats, valued at $20 each, were stolen, and by this time Mrs Jones began to become alarmed, as the matter was assuming a serious turn

At first it was thought the thief was some professional shop lifter who was "working" the town but careful investigation upon the part of the police, who were assisted in their investigations by a lady detective living on Baker street, it was found, much to the astonishment of all parties concerned, that the thief was a prominent young married lady living on the north side.

Last evening the police went to Bloomingdale armed with a search warrant. At first the lady vigorously denied that she had the hats but a careful search resulted in finding all three bonnets. Tears and entreaties followed this sensational discovery and the police, having recovered the goods, were loath to lock the woman up It is thought the lady is a kleptomaniac, as her husband is amply able to buy her all the Easter bonnets she may need.

RECALLS AN OLD CRIME

Harvey Tracy Arrested for Cruelty to Animals.

He Served a Term in Prison for Murder--The News Around the Court House.

Constable Johnson went to Sheldon last evening and arrested Harvey Tracy on the charge of brutally beating and starving his horse. The horse was in such a deplorable condition that the constable shot it Tracy was brought to this city, lodged in jail and this afternoon he is having a hearing before Justice France

The prisoner has a record that recalls an old crime Years ago, with a man named Dunham, he was arrested for the murder of O'Brien, near where the Randall hotel now stands and the body of the dead man was thrown in the canal Both Tracy and Dunham were convicted of the crime and sent to prison. They served their terms and Tracy came back to this county and has since been living near Sheldon.

ASSESSOR'S VALUATION.

In reference to the property valuations to be made by the assessors this year, Township Assessor Frank Chapman said: "People have an impression that property valuations are to be increased this year. This is not correct. The valuation of real estate will be about the same as four years ago. Where valuations are increased it will be because of improvements and extraordinary conditions surrounding it. We aim to keep taxation as low as possible. The natural growth will increase the aggregate, of course, but that is expected and it pays its own way without hardship."

LEGAL PICKUPS

Judge A. A. Chapin presided at the trial of the Kohnnay case at Albion.

Judge O'Rourke overruled the motion for a new trial of the case of Kohler vs. Kohler et al.

In the case of Dairyman Hartzell vs. Henry McKinnie, Judge O'Rourke granted the petition for a new trial

In the case between Pape and Randall, in the DeKalb circuit court, the jury yesterday returned a special verdict, which simply sets forth the facts the jury finds to have been proved. This makes it the duty of the court to determine for which party judgment should be rendered, and each announced their purpose to claim that the judgment should be in their favor. Judge Robert Lowry and N D. Doughman were engaged in the case.

THE GOSPEL SHIP.

"Come Thou and All Thy Family Into the Ark"

Got Safely Housed for Eternity—If We Get Into the Ark of God's Mercy It Will Be Through Christ the Door—Dr Talmage's Sermon

The text selected by Dr Talmage last Sunday was Genesis vii 1 Thou shalt come into the ark thou and thy sons and thy wife and thy sons' wives with thee

In this day of the steamships Lucania and Majestic and the Paris I will show you a ship that in some respects eclipsed them all and which sailed out an ocean underneath and another ocean falling upon it Infidel scientists ask us to believe that in the formation of the earth there have been a half dozen deluges and yet they are not willing to believe the Bible story of one deluge

In what way the catastrophe came we know not—whether by the stroke of a comet or by flashes of lightning changing the air into water or by a stroke of the hand of God like the stroke of the ax between the horns of the ox the earth staggered To meet the catastrophe God ordered a great ship built It was to be without prow for it was to sail to no shore It was to be without helm, for no human hand should guide it It was a vast structure probably as large as two or three modern steamers It was the Great Eastern of olden time

The ship is done The door is open The lizards crawl in The cattle walk in The grasshoppers hop in The birds fly in The invitation goes forth to Noah, Come thou and all thy house into the ark Just one human family embark on the strange voyage and I hear the doors slam shut A great storm sweeps along the hills and bends the cedars until all the branches snap in the gale There is a moan in the wind like unto the moan of a dying world The blackness of the heavens is shattered by the flare of the lightnings that look down into the waters and throw a ghastliness on the face of the mountains How strange it looks! How suffocating the air seems! The big drops of rain begin to splash upon the upturned faces of those who are watching the tempest Crash! go the rocks in convulsion Boom! go the bursting heavens The inhabitants of the earth instead of flying to house top and mountain top, as men have fancied sit down in dumb white horror to die For when God grinds mountains to pieces and lets the ocean slip its cable there is no place for men to fly to See the ark pitch and tumble in the surf, while from its windows the passengers look out upon the shipwreck of a race and the carcasses of a dead world Woe to the mountain! Woe to the sea!

I am no alarmist When on the 20th of September, after the wind has for three days been blowing from the northwest you prophesy that the equinoctial storm is coming you simply state a fact not to be disputed Neither am I in alarmist when I see that a storm is coming compared with which Noah's deluge was but an April shower and that it is wisest and safest for eternity The invitation that went forth to Noah sounds in our ears 'Come thou and all thy house into the ark'

Well, how did Noah and his family come into the ark? Did they climb in at the window or come down the roof? No, they went through the door And just so if we get into the ark of God's mercy it will be through Christ the door The entrance to the ark of old must have been a very large entrance We know that it was from the fact that there were monster animals in the earlier ages and in order to get them into the ark two and two according to the Bible statement, the door must have been very wide and very high So the door into the mercy of God is a large door We go in not two and two but by hundreds and by thousands and by millions Yea, all the nations of the earth may go in, 10 000 000 abreast!

The door of the ancient ark was in the side So now it is through the side of Christ—the pierced side, the wide open side the heart side—that we enter Aha the Roman soldier thrusting his spear into the Saviour's side expected only to let the blood out but he opened the way to let all the world in! Oh what a broad Gospel to preach! If a man is about to give an entertainment, he issues 200 or 300 invitations carefully put up and directed to the particular persons whom he wishes to entertain But God our Father makes a banquet and goes out to the front door of Heaven and stretches out his hands over land and sea, and with a voice that penetrates the Hindoo jungle and the Greenland ice castle and Brazilian grove and English factory and American home cries out 'Come for all things are now ready'" It is a wide door! The old cross has been taken apart and its two pieces are stood up the world can come in Kings scatter treasures on days of great rejoicing So Christ, our King comes and scatters the jewels of Heaven

Rowland Hill said that he hoped to get into Heaven through the crevices of the door But he was not obliged thus to go in After having preached the Gospel in Surrey chapel, going up toward Heaven the gate keeper cried 'Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates, and let this man come in!' The dying thief went in Richard Baxter and Robert Newton went in Europe, Asia Africa North and South America may yet go through this wide door without crowding Hot every one—all conditions all ranks all people! Luther said that this truth was worth carrying on one's knees from Rome to Jerusalem but I think it worth carrying all around the globe and all around the heavens, that God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life Whosoever will, let him come through the large door Archimedes wanted a fulcrum on which to place his lever and then he said he could move the world Calvary is the fulcrum and the cross of Christ is the lever, and by that power all nations shall yet be lifted

Further, it is a door that swings both ways I do not know whether the door of the ancient ark was lifted or rolled on hinges but this door of Christ opens both ways It swings out toward all our woes, it swings in toward the raptures of Heaven It swings in to let us in, it swings out to let our ministering ones come out. All are one in Christ—Christians on earth and saints in Heaven

> One army of the living God
> At his command we bow
> Part of the host have crossed the flood
> And part are crossing now

Swing in, O blessed door, until all the earth shall go in and live Swing out until all the heavens come forth to celebrate the victory

But further, it is a door with fastenings The Bible says of Noah "The Lord shut him in" A vessel without bulwarks or doors would not be a safe vessel to go in When Noah and his family heard the fastening of the door of the ark they were very glad Unless these doors were fastened the first heavy surge of the sea would have whelmed them and they might as well have perished outside the oil as inside the ark 'The Lord shut him in' Oh the perfect safety of the ark! The surf of the sea and the lightnings of the sky may be twisted in to a garland of snow and hail—deep to deep storm to storm darkness to darkness—but once in the ark all is well God shut him in There comes upon the good man a deluge of financial trouble He had his thousands to lend Now he can not no how additional He once owned a store in New York and had branch houses in Boston, Philadelphia and New Orleans He owned four horses and employed a man to keep the dust off his coach phaeton carriage and cupola now he has hard work to get shoes in which to walk The great deep of commercial disaster was broken up and fore and aft and across the hurricane deck the waves struck him But he was safely sheltered from the storm The Lord shut him in! A flood of domestic troubles fell on him Sickness and bereavement came Then impelled the winds blew The heavens are inflame All the guardians of earthly delight are wished away Life mountains of joy are buried fathoms deep But standing by the empty crib and in the deserted nursery and in the doleful hall once a ring with merry voices now silent forever he cried The Lord give the Lord hath taken away blessed be the name of the Lord The Lord shut him in

All the sins of a lifetime clamored for his overthrow The broken vows the dishonored Sabbaths the outrageous profanities the misdemeanors of 30 years reached up then hands to the door of the ark to pull him out The boundless ocean of his sin surrounded his soul howling like a simoom, raving like an encyclidon But looking out of the window he saw his sin sink like lead into the depths of the sea The door of Heaven brought an olive branch to the ark The wrath of the billow only pushed him toward Heaven The Lord shut him in!

The same door fastenings that kept Noah in keep the troubles out I am glad to know that when a man reaches Heaven all earthly troubles are done with him Here he may have had it hard to get bread for his family there he will never hunger any more Here he may have wept bitterly there the Lamb that is in the midst of the throne will lead him to living fountains of water and God will wipe away all tears from his eyes Here he may have had work to get a house but in my Father's house are many mansions, and rent day never comes Here there are death beds and coffins and graves, there no sickness no weary watching no choking cough no consuming fever no chattering chill no tolling bell no grave The sorrows of life shall come up and knock at the door but no admittance The perplexities of life shall come up and knock on the door but no admittance Safe forever! All the agony of earth in one wave dashing against the bulwarks of the ship of celestial light shall not break them down Howl on ye winds and rage ye seas! The Lord— the Lord shut him in!

Oh what a grand old door! So wide so easily swung both ways and with such sure fastenings No burglars key can pick that lock No swearing man of hell can shove back that bolt I rejoice that I do not ask you to come aboard a rickety craft with leaky hull and broken helm and unfastened door but an ark 50 cubits wide and 600 cubits long and a door so large that the round earth without grazing the post might be bowled in

Now if the ark of Christ is so grand a place to live and die and triumph come into the ark Know well that the door that shut Noah in shut others out, and though when the pitiless storm came pelting on their heads they beat upon the door, saying Let me in! Let me in the door did not open For one hundred and twenty years they were invited They expected to come in but the unbelievers said 'We must cultivate these fields we must be worth more flocks of sheep and herds of cattle we will wait until we get a little older we will enjoy our old farm a little longer' Put meanwhile the storm was brewing The fountains of Heaven were filling up The pit was being placed beneath the foundations of the great deep The last year had come the last month the last week the last day the last hour the last moment In an awful dash an ocean dropped from the sky and another rolled up from beneath and God rolled the earth and sky into one wave of universal destruction

So men now put off going into the ark They say they will wait 20 years first They will have a little longer time with their worldly associates They will wait until [illegible]

They say You can not expect a man of my attainments and of my position to surrender myself just now but before the storm comes I will go in Yes, I will know what I am about Trust me! After awhile one night about twelve o'clock going home he passes a scaffolding just as a gust of wind strikes it and a plank falls Dead and outside the ark! Or riding in the park a reckless vehicle crashes into him, and his horse becomes unmanageable, and he shouts 'Whoa whoa!' and takes another twist in the reins, and plants his feet against the dashboard and pulls back But no use It is not so much down the avenue that he flies as on the way to eternity Out on the wreck of the crash his body is drawn but his soul is not picked up It fled behind a swifter courser into the great future Dead and outside the ark! Or some night he wakes up with a distress that momentarily increases until he shrieks out with pain The doctors come in and they give him 20 drops, but no relief, 40 drops, 50 drops 60 drops but no relief No time for prayer No time to read one of the promises No time to get a single sin pardoned The whole house is roused in alarm The children scream The wife faints The pulses fail The heart stops The soul flies Dead, and outside the ark!

I have no doubt that derision kept many people out of the ark The world laughed to see a man go in and said 'Here is a man starting for the ark Why there will be no deluge If there is one, that miserable ship will not weather it Ahu, going into the ark Well that is too good to keep Here, fellows, have you heard the news? This man is going into the ark!' Under this mutinery of scorn the man's good resolution perished

And so there are hundreds kept out by the fear of derision The young man asks himself "What would they say at the store to-morrow morning if I should become a Christian? When I go down to the club house they will shout 'Here comes that new Christian Suppose you will not have anything to do with us now Suppose you are praying now Get down on your knees and let us hear you pray Come now give us a touch Will not do it eh? Pretty Christian you are!" Is it not the fear of being laughed at that keeps you out of the kingdom of God? Which of these scoffers will help you at the last? When you bow down on a dying pillow which of them will be there? In the day of eternity will they bail you out?

My friends and neighbors come in right away Come in through Christ, the wide door that swings out toward you Come in and be saved Come and be happy The Spirit and the Bride say Come Room in the ark Room in the ark!

But do not come alone The text invites you to bring your family It says, Thou and thy sons and thy wife You can not drive them in If Noah had tried to drive the pigeons and the doves into the ark, he would only have scattered them Some parents are not wise about these things They make iron rules about Sabbaths and they force the catechism down the throat as they would hold the child's nose and force down a dose of rhubarb and calomel You can not drive your children into the ark You can draw your children to Christ but you can not coerce them The cross was lifted not to drive but to draw If he lifted up I will draw all men unto me As the sun draws up the drops of the morning dew so the sun of righteousness exhales the tears of repentance

Be sure that you bring your husband and wife with you How would Noah have felt if when he heard the rain pattering on the roof of the ark he knew that his wife was outside in the storm? No she went with him And yet some of you are on the ship 'outward bound' for Heaven But your companion is unbelieving You remember the day when the marriage ring was set Nothing has yet been able to break it Sickness came and the finger shrank but the ring stood on The swain stood alone above the child's grave and tucked mouth of the tomb swallowed up a treasure and hopes but the ring dropped not into the open grave Days of poverty came and the hand did many a hard day's work but the rubbing of the work against the ring only made it shine brighter Shall that ring ever be lost? Will the inexorable clang of the sepulcher gate crush it forever? I pray God that you who have been married on earth may be together in Heaven Oh by the quiet bliss of your earthly home by the babe's cradle by all the vows of that day when you started life together I beg you to see to it that you both get into the ark

Come in, and bring your wife or your husband with you—not by fretting about religion or dingdonging them about religion, but by a consistent life and by a compelling prayer that shall bring the throne of God down into your room Go home and take up the Bible and read it together and then kneel down and commend your souls to Him who has watched you all these years and before you rise there will be a fluttering of wings over your head angel cries, to angel Behold, they pray!

But this does not include all your family Bring the children too God bless the dear children! What would our homes be without them? We may have done much for them They have done more for us What a salve for a wounded heart there is in the soft palm of a child's hand! Did harp or flute ever have such music as there is in a child's good night? From our coarse, rough life the angels of God are often driven back But who comes into the nursery without feeling that angels are hovering around? They who do not believe in infant salvation go straight into glory but you are expecting your children to grow up in this world Is it not a question then which rings through all the corridors and windings and heights and depths of your soul what is to become of your sons and daughters for time and for eternity? 'Oh you say, I mean to set that they have good manners' Very well 'I mean to dress them well if I have myself to go shabby Very good I shall give them education, I shall leave them a fortune" Very well But is that all? Don't you mean to take them into the ark? Don't you know that the storm is coming and that out of Christ there is no safety, no pardon, no hope no Heaven?

HIS BUFFALO COAT.

The Thrilling Experience Which It Brought a Kentucky Man

'A buffalo coat yes sir' answered the Louisville man who had spent some years in Texas I got that when the plains were covered with the short-horned animals That reminds me of an experience I had thrilling, too and it will never again fall to the lot of any man living I was one of a party of a dozen bound for New Mexico We had by nightfall on the third day out reached a small creek near the boundary line in Southwestern Texas Sloping out from both sides of the creek were banks that rose to such a respectable size that it was tiresome to climb them These banks were covered with a rank growth of grass that reached to our knees The hill sloped quite abruptly At the foot of the hills to the north was a clump of young cottonwoods This made an ideal camping place We wheeled our five wagons into a circle and built our camp fire in the center of the ring made by the wagons Our horses were tethered on the outside of the inclosure

'The old guide we had with us stood the first watch He was full of stories so I sat up to hear him talk We had been 'gassing' around the camp fire for about an hour, I should judge when the old fellow started and stopped His face clouded and I saw him drop to his stomach and hold his ear to the ground He sprang to his feet in an instant

'A buffalo stampede by gingers' and bound this way' he cried 'Wake the people up and get these things out of the way I wouldn't have a jerked antelope steak for the whole kit'

'We got the people out in a hurry and the horses hitched to the wagons By this time I could hear a dull roar in the distance that the guide's trained ear had distinguished ten minutes before

Now drive to the cottonwoods yonder the old fellow said We did drive and took up our station across the creek behind the woods When we reached our place of refuge the low roar had deepened into a thunderous roll, and we could distinguish through the darkness a black moving mass in the distance Soon the flying herd was upon us The noise was terrific and you couldn't hear what your neighbor said when he shouted in your ear When the herd reached the clump of trees it separated one half going round the north of it and the other south The herd was in such a hurry that it left many of the weaker ones behind Many of these fell and were trampled to death by the others

The herd was in motion for fully three hours before the rear guard came up Then there was a lull in the storm for perhaps half an hour when a straggling few came by Then all was still

'When we broke camp next morning we found the ground covered with the carcasses of buffaloes that had been killed during the night Many of the animals were wounded and had dragged themselves away to die Of those killed outright we took the hides from about 200 and that was the end of the buffalo in that section'

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

BURDEN MAY FALL UPON YOU.

Within where to seek the vile stuff by the glass
But there's no sharing with the wretch that pleads and begs
This hand is heavy, wait thy turn
I thought not of the deadly curse
Step pitiful and unaware by step
Till the broken pledge still mocked me
Shed its blight upon their dawning years
How could I, the weight of shame to bear

I thought of my children's hopes
Who I vowed for support on the arm of their sire
Hey, ring the bells of the noble first born
The staff of the cradle in their hall was stout

I thought of the orphan's cry of his night
The rod that should shield him in coming years
Was pitifully rum in the grave was hid
And upon that young life fell the shadows of woe

I thought of the widow in poverty left
Of her kindred I bore by the evil bereft
The tear of the mother was dealt to her cup
How sadly How crushing on her did it fall?

I said Oh! How long shall this evil remain
How long, Oh How long shall King Alcohol reign
We freely invite his power to overthrow
We loudly proclaim it —Mary C A Tuddock in Ram's Horn

A FRESH DANGER

Temptation Put in the Way of Women by the Sale of Liquors in Dry Goods Stores

The courageous action of the mayor of Brooklyn N Y in opposing the issue of a license to a huge department store in his city for the sale of wine and liquors with its groceries calls attention to a practice which—if half what is alleged against it be true—should have the most unsparing condemnation In the newspaper investigation brought out by the mayor's action and the discussion which it pro stores of this class having put in a grocery department added to the latter the sale of strong drink in various forms In some instances they were even reported as selling whisky at less than cost in order to attract the custom of those to whom such an opportunity would prove attractive It was stated that though the liquors sold were not supposed to be drunk on the premises women patrons had been known to purchase a bottle of whisky take it to the dressing room, and drink until foolishly tipsy before leaving the place That the traffic actually leads to deception and falsehood is shown in the case of the very firm in question A prominent citizen vouched for the truth of the statement that when the report was first circulated that they intended to introduce groceries as a branch of their business a prominent woman the wife of an ex judge, with several of her friends called on the proprietors and told them that they should no longer trade at the store if liquors were put on sale The firm assented to the women that there was positively no intention to sell wine or liquors—yet in a short time they had made application for the use and had very properly been refused

In the expressions of individual opinion published by the papers there was nothing but deprecation of the practice of tempting women with the liquor but Comments like the following were freely printed with the names of those who bore the witness

There is my little house in the owner of city goods department store who would decline that he would put in a barroom if his customers demanded it Such a man ought to be accounted a public enemy If I were running a department store I would encourage the sale of liquor to any woman There is no question that the sale of liquor in dry goods stores gives women an opportunity to purchase alcoholic drinks which they would not have and would not take if they had to buy them liquor in a grocery store where they were known The department stores simply want to sell groceries to clerk the rum traffic Selling liquors in these stores puts unusual temptations before women I hope the public sentiment in Brooklyn will keep the department stores from getting liquor licenses and will so arouse feeling that decent women will not enter such stores When they begin to sell liquor principles and conscience leave their business It is morally wrong to offer to the women patrons of these dry goods stores additional temptations to buy wines and liquors A woman can go into a dry goods store buy a bottle of whisky and have it put up in a box so that it will look like something in the dry goods line Many women will buy liquor in these department stores who they would not venture to buy liquor in the grocery stores where they deal

It is wrong for the dry goods department stores to sell groceries wines and liquors Some of these stores sell whisky below cost to attract customers to their stores When they get them there they trust to chance to sell them something else on which they can make up what they lost on the whisky Hundreds of women buy whisky in these dry goods department stores who would not buy it anywhere else

Selling wines and liquors in these stores puts additional temptations in the way of women Most women would be ashamed to go to the grocery store and ask for a bottle of whisky But in a dry goods store unknown and unobserved many women would buy whisky without hesitation

These expressions of condemnation are not too strong Whatever may be our views of the temperance question or as to the personal rights of individuals to use or to abjure the use of alcoholic drinks, the conscience of all right people must unite in protest against the police which could wantonly put strong drink in the way of women and children—Good House keeping

RHEUMATISM AND ALCOHOL

Latest Results from the Treatment of This Disease Without the Use of Intoxicants

One item in Dr Richardson's report of his practice in the London Temperance Hospital refers to the treatment of rheumatism without alcohol He says

Out of seventy three cases of acute or subacute rheumatism being the majority acute and attended with temperatures running up to 103 deg Fah none of which were treated by alcohol and two although they were treated with out being put in the cot very hot were so far relieved that a few days saving in country house and all that was required to insure full convalescence in from a fortnight to three weeks

Can you as one young fellow to another honestly say to me that total abstinence from liquors is not a barrier to a social success?

I can and with all my heart Changing the negative to the affirmative, I can honestly say that a young man's best and highest social success is assured just in proportion as he abstains from wines An indulgence in intoxicants of any sort has never helped a man to any social position worth the having on the contrary it has kept many from attaining a position to which by birth and good breeding and all other qualifications they were entitled No young man will ever find that the principle of abstinence from liquor is a barrier to any success social commercial or otherwise On the other hand it is the one principle in his life which will in the long run help him more than any other —Ladies Home Journal

The Saloon Waste of Money

At a largely attended meeting of the Catholic clergymen in Chicago Father M P Dowling one of the most earnest of those demanding reform made an address in which he gave some startling figure He said that the total cost of the world's exposition was $ 5 000 000 the gate receipts $10 000 000 and the appropriation of the city of Chicago $ 000 000 And yet stupendous as these figures are the money annually paid to the Chicago saloon keepers is nearly twice the combined construction and general expenses of the World's fair about five times the total gate receipts $ 000 going to them for every $1 000 paid the fair He made a plea for an enlargement of the saloon and appealed for help to save the perishing thousands whose degradation is due to drink —Illinois Watch Tower

Who Was Responsible?

A sad case of suicide for which Winnipeg is responsible occurred recently near Carthage Ill Six months ago bride was found hanging in the smoke house by her husband upon his return after several days absence from home Upon discovering the body the husband fainted and lay in a stupor for several hours His body was cut down by neighbors A letter written by the wife was found in which she bade her husband goodby and said she would hang herself because she would be happier dead than living with a drunkard The husband had on several occasions cried bitterly and acted the disgrace of which he had worked on the wife's mind and she drove her to suicide This is not the only case of self destruction caused by liquor in many hundreds occur annually in the United States —Irish World

IT IS NOT A STEPPING STONE

That Indulgence in Wines Is Not Looked Upon as Attaining Social Position Emphatically Denied

Is not a young man placed at a disadvantage when he refuses wine at public dinners?

I am under the impression that a young man who refuses wine is always at a distinct advantage A strong adherence to my good principles is of more recommendation in the eyes of business men

Can you as one young fellow to another honestly say to me that total abstinence from liquors is not a barrier to a social success?

I can and with all my heart Changing the negative to the affirmative, I can honestly say that a young man's best and highest social success is assured just in proportion as he abstains from wines An indulgence in intoxicants of any sort has never helped a man to any social position worth the having on the contrary it has kept many from attaining a position to which by birth and good breeding and all other qualifications they were entitled No young man will ever find that the principle of abstinence from liquor is a barrier to any success social commercial or otherwise On the other hand it is the one principle in his life which will in the long run help him more than any other —Ladies Home Journal

RESURRECTION OF CHRIST

The Victory Which He Gained Over Death and Gives to His Followers

The two Sundays before and after our Lord's crucifixion were days of triumph He entered into the city with the strewing of palm branches and the shouts of the multitude who cried Blessed be the king that cometh in the name of the Lord For two days he was in the temple and he did not include the people for if they did not thus shut Him the very stones would cry out Always before when they would have made Him king He had hid Himself but now He was willing to receive the honor He knew, but they knew not that the crown of martyrdom must come before the crown of universal royalty

So this acceptance of kingship prepared the way for His greatest humiliation The earthly honor of a day was short lived The fickle crowd turned on Him the next day and on Friday He was crucified But as the hour of the first Sunday was the prelude to the shame of the cross and the grave was the prelude of His eternal kingship Where for says the Apostle God hath highly exalted Him On earth He would serve over all the name of King now He is King of kings and Lord of lords forever

Now by our Lord's resurrection death and life are bound together in a new relation Life is royally and death triumphant and such seems the right

Chinese Medicine and What It Did for a Poor Degraded Christian

A veteran missionary returning to China after a long absence from the field received on the very day of his return a visit from a former convert The Chinese Christian brought with him six countrymen who had been led to Christ out of the horrible filth and degradation of the opium habit

What remedy did you use? asked the returning missionary

The Christians only answer was to point to God and to his knees All he had prayed for them he felt indeed them to pray for themselves and when one of these men came to him saying in despairing tones that he had prayed but it had done him no good this man's faith sent him bad to his knees Pray again And when he came the second time he sent him back to his knees and so when he came the third time and many more times

INCOME TAX UPHELD.

But by a Divided United States Supreme Court,

Incomes From Rents and State and Municipal Bonds Exempted—Otherwise the Law Stands as Passed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—The United States supreme court, in the income tax case has reversed the decision of the lower court, but the income tax as a whole is upheld, but only by a divided court. Two important portions of the law, however, have been decided to be unconstitutional and they are so serious as to affect materially not only the revenues of the government, but the estimation in which the income tax will be held by the people.

Under the decision to be handed down by the court it is held all incomes derived from rents are excepted from taxation by the federal government, and all incomes derived from state and municipal bonds are similarly exempted. In other respects the income tax law stands as it was passed last August, but the result of the consultations in the supreme court shows very conclusively that the law can easily be picked to pieces, provided suits are brought to contest each particular point as it comes up.

It is a curious fact, but none the less true, that the law which was passed at the dictation of the populistic wing of a democratic congress has been distorted by the decision of the United States supreme court, clearly on constitutional grounds, in such a way that it will absolutely protect the class of capitalists most offensive to the populistic element. The landlords of the country will pay no income tax. The owners of bonds of almost any kind, either federal, state, county or municipal, will also be free, while the business man, the manufacturer and the salaried employe will for the present at least be compelled to contribute to the treasury of the United States government 2 per cent. of all incomes in excess of $4,000 per annum.

The first meeting of the supreme court was held March 16, two days after the conclusion of the arguments, but no decision was reached and it was not until March 30 that they succeeded in agreeing upon the outlines of the decision covering the opinion of the lower court.

The court was evenly divided. Justice Jackson was too ill to take part. Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Field, Gray and Brower were opposed to the law. Justices Harlan, Brown, Shiras and White voted to sustain the law.

The expectation among members of the court is that the decision will be rendered Monday in open court, but there is also a possibility that the court may again split up into irreconcilable sections and hold up the decision. If the next congress does not repeal the law, with the sanction of the president, there will be a sudden rise in the price of all local public securities, as well as of all real estate, for, as they will be exempted from taxation, they ought to get the benefit of the 2 per cent which other income producers are obliged to account for.

END OF TWO LIVES.

Carlo Enrico Reta and His Wife Commit Suicide.

The Dead Bodies Found in a Hotel Room, Pierced Through the Heart With Bullets.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—Late yesterday afternoon the bodies of Carlo Enrico Reta and his wife, of Reta Houses, were found dead in bed in a room of the Palace hotel, which they had entered about 2 p. m. A pistol of small calibre was found and a bullet hole over the heart of each told how they went out of the world together clasped in each others arms. Carlo Enrico Reta, "Lieut of the 17th Cavalry," arrived in this city nine months ago.

He had no means of earning a livlihood except by the instructions in the Italian language. This is how he became acquainted with Adele Wolf, the girl who was found dead at his side. His love was reciprocated by his pupil but her mother refused to entertain any idea of marriage. Reta's family in Italy is a wealthy one but the young man himself had little money.

THE GANG ESCAPES.

Dover Train Robbers Give Their Pursuers the Slip.

In Their Flight They Stop at a Implement Warehouse, Rob the Occupants and Kill the Preacher.

HENDERSON, Okla., April 6.—Three of the Dover train robbers are still at large. One has disappeared and is supposed to have died from the effects of wounds received at the hands of the United States marshals Thursday. His body is believed to have been secreted or buried by his pals. Last evening the remainder of the gang escaped from the brush, where they were surrounded by a number of deputies, and made their way to the house of Rev. Godfrey, a Baptist preacher, and demanded their supper. After obtaining it they robbed the preacher of money and valuables, took two of his best horses and rode away.

After the robbers had gone Mr. Godfrey mounted another horse and visited in pursuit of the outlaws. His body was found this morning about two miles from his home, riddled with bullets. The farmers have organized a posse of at least 500 and, with deputy marshals, are going the outlaws a close chase. They are now in the Glass mountains, where good hiding places can be found. If the posse can locate them there is not the slightest doubt but that they will be strong to the nearest tree. Mr. Godfrey leaves a wife and several children.

SUNDAY BASE BALL.

Mayor Oakley Will Likely Put a Stop to It.

A Gentleman Who Knows Whereof He Speaks Says the Cabinet Has Virtually Sold Out.

Just now there seems to be considerable doubt as to whether the present city administration will allow Sunday games of base ball in Fort Wayne. In fact, it is pretty generally understood by those in a position to know, that Mayor Oakley and the police will not allow games to be played on the Sabbath at Lakeside park.

From the printed schedule of games for Fort Wayne several of the dates occur on Sunday, the management of the league evidently taking it for granted that there will be no objection upon the part of Mayor Oakley. In this, however, it is thought they have made a mistake, for a Fort Wayne citizen who says he knows whereof he speaks declares that no base ball will be allowed in Fort Wayne on Sunday, this summer, at least.

A SENTINEL representative interviewed Mayor Oakley and Chief of Police Liggett on the matter this morning but both gentlemen declined to state what course they would pursue in the matter. Their silence, however, is taken as an indication that Sunday base ball will not be allowed.

Mayor Oakley volunteered the information that the base ball people had not been to see him about the matter and, considering the fact that Sunday games are against the law, he thought it rather strange that they have not been to see him.

R. B. Rossington, of the board of safety, was asked what he knew about the matter and said: "This is the first time I have heard the question raised but I certainly do not believe Sunday games will be allowed."

Charles Bash, also of the board of safety, was seen, and asked his views in the matter. "I have not given the question much thought so far, but I am opposed to Sunday base ball," said he.

A FATHER'S CRIME.

Cut Off the Head of His Own Darling Son.

After a Week's Search Officers Find the Demented Man Coolly Awaiting Their Coming.

CLINTON, Iowa, April 6.—August Swansen, who, on March 30, cut off his seven-year old son's head with a hatchet, was discovered last night coolly leaning up against the city hall building. Officers easily arrested him. He said he did not want them to take the child from him and so killed it. Afterwards he paddled across the Mississippi and went to DeKalb. He will be taken before the commissioners of insanity.

Personal Mention of People Known in Fort Wayne.

The following personal news of interest to a number of readers is taken from this week's issue of the Monroeville Breeze:

"A. Martin, formerly of this place, now located at Fort Wayne, and engaged in the livery business in that city, was in town Saturday last.

"Frank Davis, formerly of this place, now located in business at Audubon, Iowa, was in town this morning paying his brother, Henry, and family a short visit. He was accompanied by his brother, J. F. Davis, of Fort Wayne.

"Our esteemed citizen, I. B. Nixon, is nursing a badly bruised and sprained wrist, sustained by breaking through the board sidewalk on South street, in front of the Eagle property. As the board broke he fell and in endeavoring to catch him self fell upon his arm. He is, however, at his post of duty at his elevator. Mrs. C. P. Mitchell also sustained a heavy fall Tuesday last by being tripped by a loose board in the sidewalk in front of the property owned by Joshua Wagner, on 10th street."

Mrs. Limecoolley, a young woman recently divorced from her husband, was sent to jail for eleven days for being drunk last night. She was arrested in company with a young man who gave his name as Randall. The couple had been to New Haven in a buggy and were driving the horse entirely too fast to suit the police. Randall was bailed out. The name he gave was fictitious.

Gov. Matthews Makes the Appointment of Trustees.

Mr. W. B. Page, of This City, is Named as One of the Board for the Eastern Hospital.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 6.—Governor Matthews last evening appointed the four boards of trustees for the state benevolent institutions under the recent act of the general assembly.

The central and southern institutions are given a democratic majority and the eastern and northern a republican majority on their boards.

"I have not yet received an official notice of my appointment," said Mr. Page, "but I received this morning a telegram from Mr. S. E. Smith, the superintendent of the Eastern hospital, congratulating me upon my selection by the governor as one of the trustees of the institution."

"I would not like to answer that question until I have received official notice of my appointment from the governor," was the reply.

STARCH WORKS BURNED

Over $200,000 Worth of Property Destroyed.

One Watchman Is Missing and Is Supposed to Have Been Burned to Death.

COLUMBUS, Ind., April 6.—The American Starch works, with buildings covering ten acres, was burned today. The plant was being run night and day on account of a rush. In the dry room, on the fourth floor, the flames were first discovered. The water mains in the building were disabled because they could not be reached, the pipes being burnt off weakening the pressure from without. In fifty minutes from the time the flames were discovered the building was a wreck, and $200,000 had gone up in smoke.

The building was owned and operated by the Mooneys, well known tanners. The amount of insurance so far as can be ascertained, was $85,000. Seventy five tons of corn were destroyed. One watchman is missing and is supposed to be burned. Another had a narrow escape. The works were owned by the Mooneys in Louisville and Cincinnati and were not in the trust.

SMITH RATING COMPANY

Place the Responsibility For Quotations on the Merchants.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

DEAR SIR:—We notice the following article in your issue yesterday:

"Smith's mercantile report, of Fort Wayne, has just been issued by a home company. It contains about 10,000 names of Fort Wayne people. Many complaint reaches it of the inaccuracies in the many of our people."

We ask for space for a brief reply. The Smith Credit Rating company is responsible for the compilation and publication of the mercantile report; they are not, however, responsible for the ratings. These are furnished them by their subscribers, all merchants of Fort Wayne. The credit rating of each person furnished by any merchant is based upon that merchant's opinion of the person rated, and that opinion rests upon the merchant's knowledge of the individual, gained through actual business transactions with him.

In any work of this character and magnitude, containing as it does over 27,000 names instead of 10,000, as stated in your article, it would be strange indeed if some inaccuracies and not occured by reason of which injustice may have been done some one.

For all such inaccuracies we have nothing but sincere regret and no earnest desire to do all we can to correct them. For the purpose of remedying such inaccuracies, we expect soon to issue to merchants using the book a "change sheet," which will contain corrections of ratings, which a careful investigation has shown to be unjust and to which our attention has been called. Yours truly,

The deceased, in jumping from a fence ran the sharp point of a wood into the sole of his foot. A slight cut resulted, but the wound grew very painful and blood poison set in. Yesterday afternoon alarming symptoms of lockjaw set in and the man died in fearful agony at the time stated. Mr. Aulls was born in New York and was forty eight years of age. He recently moved to this city from Sheldon, Ind. He leaves a family. This afternoon a post mortem examination will be held by the physicians who attended the case. SUICIDE.

Last night, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Philley, No. 40 Brackenridge street, occurred the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Metzger, one of Fort Wayne's pioneer residents. The deceased was born in Circleville, Ohio, in 1811 and had attained the age of eighty-one years at the time of her death. At her home she was married in 1832 to Andrew Metzgar, and soon after removed to this county, where Mr. Metzgar settled in Springfield township. In 1865 the family came to the city and since that time have resided here continually. The husband of Mrs. Metzgar died nearly twenty years ago, and since that time she has made her home with her children. For the last few years she has been quite feeble and only able to be about the house. Mrs. Metzgar was a woman of admirable christian qualities and in her long life in this county was ever ready to aid the needy and distressed and labor for the common good of the community in which she lived. The surviving children are Harry M. Metzgar, the present county clerk, Mrs. E. S. Philley, of this city, Mrs. J. D. Leighty, of St. Joe, wife of the present congressman from this district; Mrs. Dr. Myers, of Churubusco, and George Metzgar, of Garrett, Ind., all of whom will be in the city today. RECALLS AN OLD CRIME

Harvey Tracy Arrested for Cruelty to Animals.

He Served a Term in Prison for Murder—The News Around the Court House.

Constable Johnson went to Sheldon last evening and arrested Harvey Tracy on the charge of brutally beating and starving his horse. The horse was in such a deplorable condition that the constable shot it. Tracy was brought to this city, lodged in jail and this afternoon he is having a hearing before Justice Franco.

The prisoner has a record that recalls an old crime. Years ago, with a man named Dunham, he was arrested for the murder of O'Brien, near where the Randall hotel now stands, and the body of the dead man was thrown in the canal. Both Tracy and Dunham were convicted of the crime and sent to prison. They served their terms and Tracy came back to this county and has since been living near Sheldon.

NEW NOTARIES PUBLIC.

Among the new notary publics who have recently been given commissions by Governor Matthews to sign deeds, mortgages and other legal instruments in this city and county, are several ladies, as will be seen by glancing over the following list which was obtained at the clerk's office by THE SENTINEL, with the assistance of John E. Manning, the efficient and obliging deputy county clerk:

Alice M. Beagnot, Elisabeth C. Lincoln, Oscar P. Ebersole, Frederick W. Kuhne, Henrietta Schlatter, Annie O. Eourie, William Kirkham, Chas. H. Worden, William Beck, Louis F. Curdes, Julius J. Ems, Lydia S. Burtch, Joseph H. Holloway, F. W. Schadden, Joseph R. Lowry, E. W. Meeks, Geo. W. Wilbur, Fred K. J. Bauer, Aug. A. Chasin, A. F. Glutting, C. A. Rekers, sr., Wm. J. Leuneck, Geo. D. Crane.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

This is the last day of the session of the board of commissioners and general business was considered. They have this week considered road and ditch matters. Leroy Sprague, John Dalman and Frederick Goisching were appointed viewers of the Perriquey road, in Adams township, and Christ. Westfal, Christian Baade and F. C. Meyers viewers of the Standard Oil road, in Wayne township. Thomas Vandolah, Harland Saylor and Christ. Saltman were appointed to view the proposed McComb ditch, in Perry township, and Samuel Woods, Thomas Greer, sr., and Bishop Ibbison are viewers of the Nick Christman ditch, in Pleasant township.

ASSESSOR'S VALUATION.

In reference to the property valuations to be made by the assessors this year, Township Assessor Frank Chapman said: "People have an impression that property valuations are to be increased this year. This is not correct. The valuation of real estate will be about the same as four years ago. Where valuations are increased it will be because of improvements and extraordinary conditions surrounding it. We aim to keep taxation as low as possible. The natural growth will increase the aggregate, of course, but that is expected and it pays its own way without hardship."

In his appointment of hospital trustees Gov. Matthews was fair to both political parties.

THE Jewish feast of Passover, or Easter, will begin next Monday evening. The season lasts for a week and commemorates the leading of the people from the bondage of the Egyptians by Moses.

—Eastern business men of all sections of the country express the confident belief that the business tide has turned for at least a long term of years, and that there will be steady improvement for months and months to come.

By July 1st the world will know what wealth the people of Indiana possess. Their holdings will represent more than a billion dollars. The value fixed by the assessors will be less than the real value. The resources of Indiana are great.

THE American legislative riot idea has reached Europe and is proving its feolious. In the Belgian parliament two statesmen hammered each other in pugilistic style and their friends deported themselves in regular Nebraska-Oklahoma-Indiana fashion.

A Michigan jury has unquestionably cinched the American jury climax for eccentricity. Deputy Secretary of State Lindholm, who acknowledged having embezzled state funds, was acquitted by the twelve wise men simply because he said that he would have returned the money had he not lost his position.

AS WILL be seen by our local columns, the city's public library has added a number of new books to their already excellent list. The library is being well patronized by our people and is proving a grand benefit, as it places within the reach of all reading matter that could not have been obtained by many in any other way. It is an educator, the influence of which for good will be felt not only now but for years to come.

AS WILL be seen by the telegram from Indianapolis, published in THE SENTINEL today, Governor Matthews has announced the appointments made by him of the four boards to manage the benevolent institutions of the state. One of the appointments is of local interest—that of Mr. W. D. Page, the editor and proprietor of the Daily News, of this city, as one of the trustees of the Eastern hospital, located at Richmond. The appointment is an excellent one and will be generally approved by our citizens. Mr. Page is admirably fitted for the position to which the governor has appointed him. He is a man of good business ideas, fine qualifications and will take an interest in the benevolent work, the details of which as trustee he will be called upon to supervise. The appointment came to Mr. Page unsolicited by him and is an honor worthily bestowed.

THE assessors at Indianapolis have been importuned by the taxpayers to keep the appraisement of property in that city down, because it is said that Indianapolis has been paying more than its share of taxes. The assessors now at work in this city should learn a lesson from this move on the part of the city of Indianapolis and keep the appraisement in Fort Wayne down to as low a figure as they consistently can, as our taxes are already very high and we ought not to pay taxes on a higher valuation of property than do other parts of the state. The citizens of Fort Wayne, by being compelled to pay city, county and state taxes, are already bearing a heavy burden and we trust our assessors will make the valuations of property as low as they possibly can.

As might have been expected by any one having even slight knowledge of constitutional law, the supreme court of Illinois has pronounced null and void the law passed in 1893 by the legislature of that state forbidding the employment of women in factories more than eight hours a day. One of the most familiar of constitutional provisions is the right guaranteed to every adult individual to contract for his own labor on such terms as he sees fit. The eight hour law would deprive adult women of this right. The decision indicates that no legislature can constitutionally enact any law restricting hours of labor among private workmen or employers of adult age. Such law would deprive the individual of both liberty and property.

By May next the infantry of the regular army will be completely equipped with the new small bore magazine rifle of .30 caliber. Besides the new rifles, the army will have in various parts of the country 245 field and siege guns, mortars and howitzers, ranging in size from 2.2 to 7 inches in caliber. By the end of this year there will be six new dynamite guns, three for New York and three for San Francisco, and we shall have of additional new guns 13 12 inch cannon and 91 12 inch mortars for defending our coasts. There will be also 30 10 inch cannon and 20 of 8 inch caliber. The United States will then be in tolerably good condition for the peaceful arbitration of differences with other nations.

At the naval review in New York harbor in 1892 the Spanish cruiser Reina Regenta was the fastest warship then known, and she had the heaviest and most powerful outfit of guns. It was the heavy armament that destroyed her at last. Her own guns sunk her, not her enemy, but herself.

The annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church that lately closed in Philadelphia was the one hundred and eighth of its kind. That conference is as old as the constitution of the United States, and perhaps it will last longer.

Treating has a breed of mice that are wanted in every state capital and in every city in this Union. Fortunes can be made by rearing them to order. They are the breed of mice that ate up the documents proving frauds had been committed in furnishing the statehouse supplies.

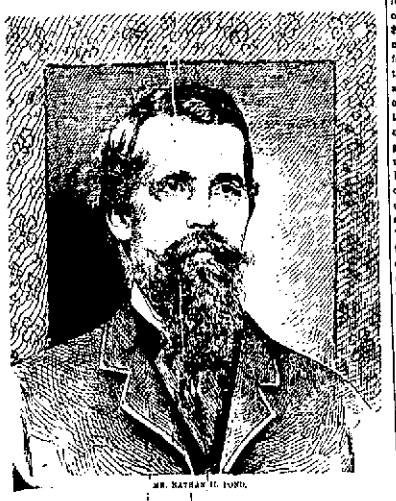
A SURE CURE.

Dr. Greene's Nervura, the Best Spring Medicine. Hon. Nathaniel H. Pond Says It Helped Him More Than All Other Medicines He Ever Took.



MR. NATHANIEL H. POND.

One of Napoleon's generals, whom he had commanded to capture a certain fortress, sent back word that it was an impossibility. Instantly the great warrior returned his answer: "Tell him the order comes from a man who conquers impossibilities!" The assault was made and the fortress won.

How many people who are sick or out of order, who are run down in health and strength, and who, from repeated failures to be cured, are discouraged and hopeless, have come to believe a cure an impossibility! If such people had a single particle of the courage of the great Napoleon they would know that a cure is possible—that it is only necessary to take the right remedy to make the cure an assured fact. To take, in fact, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Hon. Nathaniel H. Pond, of Warwick, Mass., says in regard to himself and the remarkable curative effect of this great medicine:

"I have been afflicted with liver disease caused by malarial poisoning while in the army. For about thirty years I have suffered untold agonies and have taken a great amount of medicines. My disease has become chronic, and I do not expect ever to be entirely cured. I have taken Dr. Greene's Nervura for some time, and I can truly say that while I am using it I am quite comfortable, and some days am able to work a good deal, at others not as much.

"But Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has helped me more than any other, or all the rest of medicines I have taken.

"I cannot speak in too high praise of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I have used sixteen bottles."

Do not be a nerveless, hesitating, ambitionless weakling, despairing of a cure from your weakness and disease, but be strong of mind and indomitable of courage—courage to make yourself strong and vigorous again by using the great health restorer, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Remember that a resolute determination and the use of the remedy will make you well. It should be used at this season by all means, for it is the best of all spring medicines.

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that this medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

DETERMINED UPON SUICIDE.

Sylvester Heston Takes Landanum and Turns on the Gas.

ELKHART, Ind., April 6.—Sylvester Heston, thirty-five years old, committed suicide in a strange manner. Wednesday night he registered at the Hotel Hascall at about 2 o'clock. Last evening his body was found dead in bed. He had taken a large dose of laudanum, and, to make sure that he would not fail in his attempt to end his existence, he had cut the gas pipes in his room. His body was terribly bloated. He leaves a wife and several children. The deed is attributed to despondency.

MUST SURRENDER.

John W. Rockefeller Makes an Awkward Mistake.

Passes Through Texas, Thus Making Himself Liable to the Law as a Fugitive From Justice.

WACO, Texas, April 6—County Attorney Joseph W. Taylor has been informed that recently John W. Rockefeller and several other members of the Standard Oil company whose names are in the famous indictment, were in Waco. The story goes that Mr. Rockefeller and his friends went to Mexico from a Florida port, and after enjoying an excursion through Mexico, determined to make an overland run back to New York, and entering Texas at Eagle Pass, went through Waco over the Missouri, Kansas and Texas incognito in a sleeper, keeping doors locked as long as they were on Texas soil.

Judge R. L. Henry, ex-state attorney general, on hearing that the Standard oil people had been in Texas, said that Governor Morton would now be compelled, under the ruling of his predecessor, to grant their removal. The indictments are here, and if they have been in Texas since the bills were returned, they are fugitives from justice, and Governor Morton can no longer refuse the governor's requisition.

A GREAT STEAL.

Mint Officials Rob the Government of Many Thousands.

All the Crooked Gems Are Under Surveillance and They Cannot Escape Arrest When Wanted.

CARSON, Nev., April 6.—Superintendent Mason, of the government assay office in New York, has been in full charge of the mint's examination here for two weeks. He has already discovered shortages that approximate $9,000, and all the suspected melts have not yet been examined. The town is full of secret service detectives under the control of Agent Grant, of Chicago, and they are shadowing suspected officials and learning the history of their recent extravagant habits. None of those suspected can escape. The greatest steal yet discovered in one melt was unearthed by Superintendent Mason a few days ago. He found that one run or melt which purported to contain 2 200 ounces, half gold, half silver, had but forty ounces of gold. The shortage on this fraudulent melt therefore was about $23,000. The principal man under suspicion is a melter and refiner, John Jones, who has been in office under Hirsch Harris and who came to him as a holdover from the Harrison administration. The detectives are at work on Jones' record and claim to have discovered that he has been spending $30 to $40 on an income of $125. He was first suspected by Hirsch Harris. Harris relied largely on Jones, the practical man in the department, but grew very suspicious when bars thought to have come out with a large percentage of gold were returned nearly pure silver. He reports this shortage to ex-Governor Rowell Adams, superintendent of the mint. The shortage was immediately reported to R. E. Preston, superintendent of the mint at Washington, and Expert Assayer Mason was forthwith dispatched here to investigate. The crimes were committed by the substitution of bars and it is known that the frauds extend over a period of five or six years.

The MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.

OF INDIANA.

This company was incorporated and began business Feb. 18th, 1852, and is therefore in its 44th year of uninterrupted business prosperity. It is the ONLY REGULAR OLD LINE RESERVE SYSTEM Company in the state of Indiana, and the total of assets it holds, in the Auditor's office, over $300,000 worth of securities for the benefit and protection of the policy holders. Another company makes no deposit in the state.

HOW MONEY IS LOANED.

The managers of this company, recognizing the importance of the mortgage loan department, or the investment of its policy funds, have incorporated in its plan the well known Building and Loan system of loaning money. This combination of life insurance and loaning the reserve on the Building and Loan system is original with the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Ind., and is peculiarly their property, and in the different public will at once see that the profits will be far greater under this system than from ordinary loans on city property, or loans in governmental, state, municipal, railroad bonds or Mortgage Loans under the old system.

The company loans all of its money in the state of INDIANA, and on the peculiarly favorable plan, for example: Mr. Brown borrows $1,000 to pay a debt, or for any other interest, and the interest on same for the given time, we will say $1,000 bore, and the principal interest together and per month, and divide the sum by 12, the number of months in a year, and the result the monthly payment which he pays. The results of the loan can be reported at any time, and the interest will cease.

The monthly payments on all policies issued by the Mutual Life of Ind., whether loan is made or not, are fixed, and cannot be changed. If the policy matures, a further forbearance or interest is made by the company, whether the insured is dead or alive, and all premiums held by the company are released when the specified number of payments are made.

The low premium rates, as well as the system of loaning money which every insurance man knows, the best system of policies making the Mutual Life of Ind. a most desirable company to represent, and we want to impress its merits upon the people.

PHYSICIANS NOW ORDER IT.

Paine's Celery Compound the One Spring Remedy That Makes People Well.

Physicians Perscribe It, Use It, and Advise People to Take It in Preference to Anything Else in April and May, Because It Purifies the Blood, Feeds the Brain, and Strengthens the Nerves.

Paine's celery compound is not a patent medicine.

No class of professional men are more conservative, more careful in giving advice, or more painstaking in finding out the real facts of a case than physicians.

Their recommendation in matters with which they are conversant is trustworthy. When physicians of known repute not only prescribe and use, but also bring home Paine's celery compound for their own families, there can be no doubt of its high standing in the eyes of medical men in general.

This is what busy, successful practitioners are doing these spring days all over the country.

Paine's celery compound is prepared, as they all well know, from the formula of the foremost physician of this century, Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth Medical school. Among medical men there is an absolute certainty as to just what Paine's celery compound is capable of doing. The careful record of the vast number of cases where it has made people well has been published in the medical journals of the country.

Paine's celery compound stands today as the one thoroughly authenticated remedy for weakness and debility due to malnutrition of the nervous system and impure blood.

This hard working, earnest class of professional men have never been slow in accepting Paine's celery compound.

They declare that it gives the tired body every possible chance to get back to a healthy condition. It cures nervous weakness, heart palpitation, general lack of strength, and all forms of weakness; rests and restores the jaded, fatigued brain and nerves, because it provides for the abnormal waste of these parts by an unusually prompt supply of appropriate nerve food. It purifies the blood as nothing else can do.

If every man and woman plagued with frequent headaches, and every business man made anxious by pain at the base of the brain and neuralgic twinges, would take Paine's celery compound, the world would be lightened of a vast deal of misery that ought never to be borne.

The most advanced medical thought of the latter quarter of the nineteenth century has prepared Paine's celery compound to meet and overcome these troubles that are due to filled, ill-regulated nerves, and poor, thin blood.

N. N. Leonard, M. D., of Charlestown, Mass., whose portrait appears above, one of the ablest physicians in the Boston district, a man of character and influence, says:

"After using Paine's celery compound for four or five years in my general practice, I can cheerfully recommend it. For catarrh of head or stomach, for instance, it acts like a charm. For women in many cases it is a blessing. For chronic rheumatism it does give relief. Torpid liver, general debility, constipation, pains in stomach and loss of appetite it relieves, and is the best of remedies in general nervous prostration. I recommend it to many of my patients, believing, as I do, in its real merits. I believe it a public blessing to invalids, and, as yet, not fully appreciated."

J. C. Flynn, M. D., a well known Michigan physician, is but one of hundreds who prescribe Paine's celery compound because it cures. Writing from Warren, in that state, he says: "I use the Paine's celery compound freely in my practice as a nerve tonic, blood purifier and general tonic in all debilitated conditions of the system. I find it a fine thing for patients recovering from the grip, especially old people."

Dr. J. H. Hansford, of Reading, Mass., whose writings in the Household, Health and Home, and other journals of national circulation, have endeared him to thousands, says: "I have used Paine's Celery Compound personally with much benefit. I prescribe it with excellent results."

J. H. Thomas, M. D., 320 Liberty street, Pittsburg, Penn., says: "For several months I had been suffering from rheumatism. I had taken all the usual remedies with no real benefit. I took one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and found myself much improved. The second bottle is nearly gone and I consider myself cured."

W. W. Hibbard, M. D., of Poultney, Vt., writes: "I was run down from repeated attacks of the grip, and my stomach, bowels and kidneys were out of order. I had no strength, energy or ambition to think or act, and was excessively nervous and irritable. After taking the first bottle of Paine's Celery Compound I felt better. The third bottle restored me to my usual health and strength, and I feel 10 years younger than before."

Dr. William Brown, of Fredonia, Kan., "It has wonderfully improved my general health."

W. Alden Hubbard, M. D., Boston, Mass., writes: "I have prescribed the remedy in a number of cases where the blood was impoverished, and the nerves weakened. The results have been so satisfactory that I do not hesitate to endorse Paine's celery compound."

Similar testimonials literally by hundreds might be quoted. The high scientific attainments of A. Livesay, A. M., M. D., of Yardley, Penn., have made his statements authority on matters pertaining to health. He gives his personal experience, how he was cured of sleeplessness. J. W. Ferguson, M. D., of Thayer, Kan., tells how it has cured him of dyspepsia, etc., etc. The sum total of the testimony of such men as these, as well as of the more celebrated physicians whose letters have been previously published in these columns, is that Paine's celery compound makes people well!

MUST HOLD THE BASE.

A Runner Cannot Go on a Foul Tip Which is Called a Strike.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The question as to whether a base runner may leave a base on a foul tip held by the catcher now agitates the players. According to the new rule, when a catcher holds a foul tip within the ten-foot line a strike is called on the baseman, and a base runner can make as many bases as possible on a strike. However, no base can be run on a foul except in the case of a foul fly and after it has been caught, so there is an apparent conflict of rules. The base runner is confronted by a serious difficulty. How to run on a strike, and yet hold his base on a foul, is a problem well calculated to puzzle the most expert base runner. When George Davis was questioned on that point he said he had consulted Harry Wright and the chief of umpires decided that the runner must hold his base in case of a foul tip caught by the catcher within the ten-foot line.

BOWSER KNEW HOW.

HE WAS WAY UP ON HOUSECLEANING AND PROVED IT.

And If He Had Not Suddenly Lost Consciousness Great Things Might Have Been Accomplished—The Doctor Gives Mrs. Bowser Some Good Advice.

[Copyright, 1895, by Charles B. Lewis.]

"I wish," said Mrs. Bowser as she helped Mr. Bowser on with his overcoat the other morning, "I wish you would stop this postal card in the box on the corner as you go out."

"Uno!" replied Mr. Bowser as he received it. "Who is Mrs. White of 173 Larkins avenue?"

"I want her to help me clean house for three or four days."

"Clean house, eh! How many times do you clean house in a year?"

"In the spring and fall. What's the matter?"

Mr. Bowser removed his hat and gloves and overcoat in a very deliberate way and then replied:

"We don't want Mrs. White of 173 Larkins avenue to assist in housecleaning."

"But I—I—went!"—

"And we are not going to have this house turned wrong side out for a couple of weeks. Not being very busy at the office, I'll do all the work for you this forenoon."

"Why, no one can clean house in half a day."

"Can't, eh? We'll see about that. I'll get my old clothes on and show you a trick or two about housecleaning. This idea of feeling around for a week or two is all nonsense."

"Mr. Bowser, please listen to me," she pleaded. "All the furniture must be rubbed over, the pictures taken down, the woodwork wiped, the carpets swept with salt and the ceilings brushed. It will take two women!"—

"It will take two women two weeks," he interrupted, "while a man can do the same amount of work in two hours. It's all in knowing how to go at it. Even my mother, whose spirit is now in heaven, had no method in housecleaning."

"—I think you'd let it go till fall," stammered Mrs. Bowser.

"No, we won't. I'll be with you in five minutes, and if we don't have this house shining like a new dollar from top to bottom before noon I'm no hustler."

"But"—

"Time will do, Mrs. Bowser; time will do," he said as he turned on her. "I own this house. I am the head of this family. I was helping to clean house before you had cut your first tooth. I'll be down in five minutes and begin on the parlor."

When he came down, after getting into his old suit, the front window was open and Mrs. Bowser had just beckoned the street to see each other, but that he could go right ahead with his work. She brought him up the dustpan, and as he stood in the middle of the parlor and spat on his hands and looked around he chuckled:

"I'll say 30 minutes to clean this room spick span and give the old lady a surprise party!"

He seized the sofa and rushed it into the back parlor, followed by the chairs and stands, and in seven or eight minutes the floor was clear. Then he placed the stepladder to take down the first picture. He had just lifted the sides of the book when the ladder slipped, and there was a crash, and a smash, and a jingle which brought the cook up stairs to find Mr. Bowser lying in a heap on the floor and to exclaim:

"Goodness to mercy, but I thought the whole house had fallen into the cellar! How did it happen, Mr. Bowser?"

He slowly got up, looked from the stepladder to the floor and felt of the back of his head, and finally replied:

"I stepped off. Bring me salt, and a broom, and a rag."

By the exercise of due caution he got the other pictures down without accident. The girl brought the things and stepped for a moment to say:

"Nobody would ever suspect that ye knew how to clean house so beautifully. Don't them winder curtains come down before ye scraps and dust, and shan't I hold the ladder while ye climb up?"

Mr. Bowser said he could manage alone, and the cook retired in her kitchen. Mrs. Bowser had said the carpets must be swept with salt. The cook had brought up a pail holding six quarts, and he stood it all on to the last ounce to make a good job of it. She had said the furniture must be rubbed. He hunted around and found a bottle of evening sunshine oil, thinned it down with witch hazel and went over every piece of furniture in six minutes. All the window curtains needed was a little dusting, and getting a firm grip on the broom handle he proceeded to jump and work until satisfied that they were thoroughly cleaned. The cook came up with a feather duster, and Mr. Bowser decided to begin his cleaning on the mantel cabinet. He placed the stepladder and climbed up and lifted the ornaments with one hand and worked the duster with the other. He had yesterday decided to finish with the cabinet in just one minute, so he gave nine minutes to the ceiling, two more to sweeping the carpet and 30 seconds to running in the furniture, when he lost consciousness.

He had a faint recollection of seeing the parlor floor suddenly jump up six or eight feet, and of feeling that he had been hit, but he wasn't really sure of any thing until he heard the voice of the cook saying:

"Don't blame me, ma'am. The doctor was not at home, and I had to wait 15 minutes."

Then he heard Mrs. Bowser inquiring:

"Doctor, do you think he will be a cripple for life?"

"He's hard to say," replied the doctor. "He struck on his head and came down with his legs bent up under him, and the spine may have been badly injured. What on earth was he pouncing around on top of a stepladder for?"

"He was doing housecleaning. Poor man! I can't lay it up against him that he's nearly ruined my curtains, broke a chair, smashed the cabinet, destroyed nearly all the breakable ornaments and has given me a week's work to clean the furniture and carpets."

"Is this the Bowser I read of in the newspapers?"

"Yes, sir."

"Always blaming his wife and threatening to get a divorce?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'll do all I can for him, but he's been served just right. Keep him as quiet as possible. If he says anything about his budget seeing your lawyer, silently, excepting the child, I'll up and kill the old cuss, and get off scot free."

THEY DIDN'T VOTE.

The Old Man Was Going to, but Changed His Mind.

The colonel and I stood talking in front of the postoffice when an old colored man came along on his way to the polls to cast his vote. He pulled off his cap and bowed, and the colonel queried:

"Well, Uncle Moses, are you going to the polls?"

"Yes, sah, gwine right to de polls," was the reply.

"Got your ballot made up as to how you will vote, I reckon?"

"Yes, sah, all made up."

"Let's see. You have three or four sons, haven't you?"

"Fo' sons, kurnel. Yes, sah, got fo' sons, but dey has dun disconcluded not to vote dis time."

"That's their, Moses?"

"Wuhl, sah, she's 'ter sun Abraham. He was gwine to vote when he 'sociate up wid Marx Johnson. Marx Johnson he lost a hoss last fall, an he tells Abrahams he'd better stay right home an plant cotton. Marx Johnson has sich a kind way wid him dat Abrahams couldn't resist."

"I see."

"Dar's my son Peter. He was gwine to vote when he meets up wid Marx Phillips. Marx Phillips he look a spotted calf 'bout three months ago, an he dun sold Peter dat critter was no good. Peter's helpin Abrahams but wild de cotton today."

"I understand."

"Dar's my son Isaac. He was gwine to vote in de biggest klust of a vote when he meets up wid Marx Bobbs. Marx Bobbs got a 'barrap in front of his smokehouse last winter an roberts a nigger, an he dun told Isaac he'd better stay right home an help Peter an Abrahams."

"Exactly. Isaac, Moses's another son."

"Yes, sah, my son Paul. Paul he dun reckoned he'd vote twice, but he meets up wid Marx Hilton. Marx Hilton he lost two bags o' roh a few days ago, an he dun told Paul dat pollyticks was too good, an he'd better stay home an help Isaac, Peter an Abrahams. Dey's all workin in de cotton field today, sah."

"But you are going to vote, Uncle Moses?" asked the colonel.

"Oh, yas, sah. Gwine right up to de polls an put in my vote."

"I'd like to speak to you a moment."

The colonel stepped aside, and the old man followed. They conversed for a couple of minutes, and then Uncle Moses started for home, saying as he looked back:

"All right, kurnel—all right. I did reckon I'd vote, but I'se changed my mind an dassn't keep 'bout it. I'll go home an help de boys wid de cotton!"

"What did you say to him?" I asked of the colonel.

"Oh, nothing much," was the reply. "I just told him I had 18 chickens stolen a few nights ago, and that my dog followed somebody's tracks right to his back door! Poor old Uncle Moses! I think he had his mind made up to vote and will be greatly disappointed, but I really felt it my duty to tell him, you know. He might have returned for the other 19 and got into bad habits."

THE ARIZONA KICKER.

The Editor Explains How the Office Came to Him.

THE GREAT EVENT.—We beg pardon of our readers for the fuss about moving from THE KICKER office last week, also for the hilarious nature of the articles giving the information that we had been appointed postmaster of this town; also for the articles written by our horse editor and agricultural editor and smuggled into the sheet without our knowledge. We have been neither drunk nor crazy. We have simply stepped over for a few days. The abolition fuss passed, and we are again the cool, calm critter of other days and can look on things as they are. Mosby having gone we assumed our duties as postmaster. While we have pulled every possible wire and played every card to the pack for years to get into this thing silent, we had given up all hope when the appointment came

Some of our fellow townsmen see in it a recognition of our arduous labors on behalf of the Democratic party. We don't. We see in it the inherent loathing for any particular party. We believe the office came to us because our persistent efforts to secure it made the postmaster general so tired that he wanted a rest. We have several times stated our belief that nothing is too good for an editor, and that an editor who won't look to getting several postal plums under his wings is no good. We have collared three and are camping on the trail of four or five more.

On taking possession of the postoffice we were tendered an ovation expressive of the enthusiasm and good will of our fellow townsmen, and in a brief speech we outlined the policy we shall pursue. About 600 shots were fired during the ovation, and we are sorry to learn that Colonel White was wounded in the foot, and that Major Wheelock received a bullet in the right shoulder. Neither this nor any other political appointment or election will interfere with the interests of THE KICKER, and we shall be thoroughly nonpartisan. Our great faculty for getting on both sides of everything will be found our best efforts. We have been repeatedly told that we are unknown in New York, Boston, Philadelphia or Chicago, and we indorse the statement. We are a resident of the Territory and have always refused to indorse or be indorsed by any. While these others may not, this paper will. The Arizona editor who lets his

About Half as Large as Ireland, Inhabited Jointly by Chinese and Savage Aborigines, It Is Known as the Granary of China—Brief Description.

NTIL recently the civilized world has not been wildly curious about Formosa, but since the conviction has become general that China will have to cede it to Japan as a part of the war indemnity much interest has been shown in that direction. Diligent investigation on the part of the journalistic writer reveals the fact that there are a good many interesting things to be learned about the faraway Asiatic island in question. Like all other lands of the ultimate orient, the habits and customs of its inhabitants are about as unlike the habits and customs of those who dwell in the occident as can well be imagined. But, unlike Korea, over which the wicked wrestle between the Celestial empire and the Island of the Rising Sun arose, Formosa is not peopled by a distinct race, nor has it the aspect of a civilization of its own.

The Chinese say that the island first became known to them ancestors a little over 400 years ago. It is hardly probable, however, that they mean exactly what they say when they make this assertion, since only about 80 or 90 miles of sea separate Formosa from the mainland, and there are times when the tops of the highest Formosan peaks may be distinguished from the Chinese coast near Amoy. It is more likely that the Chinese mean to convey the impression that it was near the close of the fifteenth century that their countrymen began to emigrate to Formosa and to settle on its shores.

At all events, Chinese colonization must have begun at about that time, for, near the close of the seventeenth century, when the Japanese found the Island and essayed to plant the flag of the sunburst there and to work Formosa in as a component integer of the Cherry Blossom empire, the Chinese were very much on hand and very much alive to the advantages of retaining possession of the place. Unquestionably this has been a good thing for the Chinese ever since.

Formosa is about half as large as Ireland. It stretches from north to south over a little less than four degrees of latitude, its northernmost point being slightly further south than the southernmost point of Florida. It forms part of the chain of islands which "are supposed as a protective fortification between the Asiatic coast and the broad expanse of the Pacific," inundating the immensity from the fury of the typhoon which is capped by the Chinese ports from Amoy to the Yellow sea.

In shape Formosa is long and narrow, tapering to a point at the southern extremity, known as Sau-hai-shan, or South cape. From Sau-hai-shan nearly to Keelung, the island's northeastern point, a backbone of mountains, known simply as Tai-shan, or Great mountain, by the Chinese, stretches somewhat to the east of the median line. The descent from this range to the sea, I inquire abroad, not to the west it is much more gradual, so that there is a rather broad plain on the side nearest China and another, though less extensive one, to the north. The sort of these plains is exceedingly fertile, particularly in the valleys, where the subsoil of sand and clay is covered with a deep and rich alluvial mold. It is only the comparatively level portions of the island that have been subjugated by the Celestials, the mountainous districts and the rugged eastern slopes still being populated chiefly by aboriginal tribes. So fertile are the plains occupied by the Chinese and sedulously and effectively hasellegislature will elect his successor in January next, and a lively canvass for the place is in prospect.

Mr. George Cass Perry in Morris county, Ohio, Oct. 20, 1825, and removed when eight years of age to Mississippi, where he was educated in the common schools of Carroll county. He served in the Mexican war as a private in the First regiment of Mississippi volunteers, commanded by Colonel Jefferson Davis. He acquitted himself creditably in the campaign, and participated in the battle of Monterey.

Returning to his home he studied law and was admitted to the bar. In 1854 he was elected reporter of the high court of errors and appeals and was re-elected in 1860. He prepared and published ten volumes of the reports of the decisions of that court, and afterward published a digest of all the supreme court decisions from the admission of the state to the Union to 1870.

In 1861 he was a member of the convention in Mississippi which passed the ordinance of secession and he voted for and signed that instrument. When the war broke out, he entered the Confederate army as captain in the Twentieth regiment of Mississippi volunteers. He afterward served as brigadier general of state troops and as colonel in the Confederate army.

He returned to his law practice at the close of the war, and in 1875-6 was chairman of the Democratic state executive committee. In 1879 he was appointed one of the judges of the supreme court of Mississippi and was elected chief justice. He resigned in February, 1891, to accept an election to the United States senate, and has been twice reelected. In the senate Mr. George is distinguished for his industry and endurance and has more than once been seen sitting in his seat in the chamber at 3 o'clock in the morning, when the senate might require the presence of five members to constitute a quorum. He is chairman of the committee on agriculture and forestry and a member of the committees on judiciary, privileges and elections, public lands, mines and mining, and various minor committees.

SENATOR GEORGE TO RETIRE.

He Served with Distinction in the Mexican and Civil Wars.

After service of 14 years in the United States senate, James Z. George of Mississippi announces that he will retire from office on the expiration of his term, March 3, 1895. Although Senator George has still four years to serve, the situation been carried on that Formosa has long been known as the granary of China. Practically every crop that flourishes on the mainland does well on Formosa also, rice, sugar, jute, grass cloth, rice paper, camphor and timber being among the abundant productions.

Large coal deposits, however, there are of these are the camphor and the sulphur obtained from the mines and the mountains, and both produced as crown monopolies. As will be surmised from the presence of sulphur, Formosa is supposed to be of volcanic formation, and though no European or American traveler has described any existing volcanoes, the Chinese tell of a small mountain, fifty miles from a hill, which they call Ho-shan, or Fire mountain, and which explorers have observed a lot of steam and sulphur spurting boiling from the rocks near Tamsui, one of the most considerable settlements. The sulphur is taken from the mines in a sort of plaistoke condition, after which it is boiled in water and all of the impurities separated from the sulphur, and then it is boiled and run into molds, and as such, from which the cakes are removed when cold by the simple process of breaking out the molds.

The gigantic camphor tree, in which the camphor is obtained as well as in the possession of the natives, and it is not easy, therefore, to maintain a constant supply, and many a battle royal has been waged between Chinamen and savages over this matter. It was because of his action regarding the camphor crop that the governor of Formosa, Lin Ming Chuan, a protege of the famous Li Hung Chang, the prime minister, was degraded by imperial decree some four or two years ago. The governor had been a fortunate one in military affairs, for he was sent to Formosa, and both before and afterward he displayed administrative abilities of such a commanding sort as to win permission to experiment upon the island with many foreign notions that would under ordinary circumstances be punished on the mainland itself.

From the first Lin Ming Chuan exhibited a perfect readiness to receive all there was "in it" for himself from his government, but for a long time his plans on were either quietly smothered or ignored altogether. At last, however, in 1890, he granted a totally illegal monopoly of the camphor trade to a Chinaman named Yen Buttler in return for the annual payment of a sum of ready money. This kicked up a great row among the other foreign and native traders in camphor and led to a united protest at Peking on the part of the consular diplomatists, and after some delay, the governor was duly degraded as stated. This degradation, however, was more a matter of form and sentiment than anything else, since he went out from deprived of his governorship or his revenge.

Besides sulphur the mineral resources of Formosa include coal and petroleum. The coalfields are located principally in the northern part of the island, and the coal produced is chiefly of a very inferior quality, carrying rapidly, but still available for marine purposes, and being regularly employed in many foreign vessels on short voyages, by the Chinese men-of-war and in the furnaces of the arsenal at Foochau. Until 1877 this coal was mined after the simple and primitive methods of the Chinese, but in that year an English engineer of the various name of Tyrrell was engaged by the government to open a mine with a shaft after the English fashion, and since then the output has been larger than ever before, the export alone some years amounting to 40,000 or 50,000 tons.

Owing largely to the progressive spirit of Governor Lin Ming Chuan, Formosa has for some time led the mainland in the matter of western improvements. A telegraph line was built to the northern part of the island and a railway line was begun some years ago, but whether the latter has ever been finished is not known to this writer. In addition to the agricultural products already mentioned, tea and pineapples grow and mature rapidly in Formosa, and this governor has fostered tea planting with great care, but his scheme for cultivating and curing the plant after the methods so successfully employed by the English in Ceylon has not been a brilliant success, according to late reports, principally because of lack of money to carry it out. It is this lack, doubtless, that has prevented his consummating many other schemes for improvement that he had in mind when made governor.

The highest mountain in Formosa is the Mo-Hong-Sham, or Wooded mountain, named Mount Morrison by the English and accounted 12,850 feet high, though that is probably an overestimate. The scenery of the island is said to be of unusual boldness and grandeur, especially along the eastern coast.

Deer, bears, bears, goats, monkeys, squirrels and flying squirrels abound in Formosa, and occasionally panthers and wildcats are seen. Some travelers tell of a poisonous but exceedingly beautiful green snake. Birds of many sorts are known, and fish are plentiful. In place of the horse the ox is the beast of burden and is also extensively used as a saddle animal. Tsau-Sui, Howei, or Hobay, as the chief town is variously known, has 100,000 inhabitants, and there are several others ranging from 20,000 to 80,000. The whole island contains about 1,500,000 inhabitants. The unenlightened natives of the eastern slopes are exceedingly savage and rear up into many tribes or clans.

Spring Fashions in Buffalo.

Despite of the influence of the new woman, gents will wear no dress this spring as usual. Pompous should be worn on the head unless there are sunbeams. The latter may be worn hanging down the back. It is still good form to wear black gloves when cleaning the kitchen stove. At other times colors may be worn by those who prefer. It is not now easy for ladies to be in full dress when dressing and the weekly washing. The essential thing about a costume for marketing is a purse. At theatre parties ladies will wear opera glasses and their own hats, if they have plenty. If not, they may wear some one else's. When long skirts are selected for walking costumes, the wearer should be particular to clear the house boat and sailing craft shoes. Slippers are not suitable for street wear at this season.—Buffalo Express.

THE SENIOR SCRIBE.

SMALLEY IS THE DEAN OF AMERICAN FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS.

For Twenty-five Years He Has Served the New York Tribune in London—Now He Is Coming to America as Correspondent of the London Times.

At Lord John Bull's table is served with inviting or not into English intelligence from America, for George W. Smalley has occupied the post of New York correspondent for the London Times.

A large proportion of the readers here read Mr. Smalley's cable letters in the New York Tribune during the last few years have disagreed with the conclusions of the writer, for he has often displayed much sympathy with the cousin relatives in British politics, and not seldom is he not complaisant on this side of the water. But, in spite of this, Smalley has long been regarded by the leader of the corps of American correspondents in London, in point of ability as well as length of service. For more than 25 years he has served the Tribune abroad, and his prolonged residence in the British capital has given him a thorough and solid knowledge of British institutions, men and affairs that has been unrivalled by any of the other men holding similar positions there, and his great capacity and splendid journalistic training have combined with this knowledge to win for him the very highest repute in his profession.

It was in 1867 that Mr. Smalley's transatlantic work was begun. When the Franco-Prussian war broke out, he transferred the scene of his activity to the continent of Europe for a time, and his telegraphic reports of the flighting and the movements of that memorable contest sent to The Tribune and the London newspaper that joined in the enterprise were of the highest order and undoubtedly contributed much toward the working of a revolution in the methods of the British war correspondent.

Since the close of that war Mr. Smalley has remained in London almost continuously, leaving only for occasional short trips to the continent, when some event of unusual importance made this desirable, or for shorter and more seldom visits to the United States. Among Londoners he has grown to be very well known, having become a member of several of the most important clubs, in which he is exceedingly popular as a man. All this has somewhat led to the impression here that Mr. Smalley had become a thoroughly Anglicised American, one who was existentiated in sentiment as well as in residence. But the fact that he has accepted a post that carries with it a permanent residence in this country seems to contradict this impression.

Mr. Smalley is now 62 years old. He is a native of Franklin, Suffolk county, Mass., and his ancestry was of that sort generally described as "good old colony stock." He was educated at Yale, where he was graduated in 1858, in the class with Andrew D. White, Russell A. Alger, John Gibson, Rollin M. Daggett, Isaac H. Bromley, Wayne MacVeagh and others who have since distinguished themselves. He was an ardent abolitionist and a friend of Wendell Phillips. After leaving college he read law, but in 1862, when the civil war came, he joined the staff of the New York Tribune as a war correspondent and distinguished himself by some remarkable work first in South Carolina, and then in Virginia. His account of the battle of Antietam was a really wonderful performance as to accuracy, fullness and promptness, and on that occasion his paper distanced all others.

After he had devoted a year to duty at the front Mr. Smalley was recalled to New York and intrusted with the delicate and important task of writing the editorial comments upon the latest war news. After the close of hostilities he continued upon The Tribune's editorial staff until sent to London, as stated, in 1867.

Mr. Smalley was married in 1862 to Miss Phebe Garman, of Hudson, an adopted daughter of Wendell Phillips. For some years after he went to London his sympathies were distinctly with the Liberals, and he was at that time personally very intimate with Gladstone, though his enthusiasm of the Grand Old Man during his later public career were often startling and sometimes bitter. In person Mr. Smalley is large, being over 6 feet tall and with correspondingly broad shoulders. His complexion is florid, and it has been said that his appearance is that of an English squire. Undoubtedly he will be well paid by The Times, for the 5 cents per word cables it—far more than $5,000 a year as a matter of fact—and special compensation besides for all matter over.

SPEAKER OF THE COMMONS.

He Is Elected With Imposing Ceremonies. Arthur Wellesley Peel Seen to Retire.

The proper thing to do, after Arthur Wellesley Peel, speaker of the house of commons, and his probable election to the peerage is at present one of the leading topics of discussion in English political circles. For 11 years Speaker Peel has presided with skill and discretion over one of the most turbulent legislative bodies in the world and is acquainted with the doings of every statesman who room since the late lord Beaconsfield.

The speaker is the youngest son of the great Sir Robert Peel and a nephew of the Duke of Wellington. He was born in 1829 and educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford. In 1865 he entered parliament for Warwick and has represented that constituency ever since. He was elected speaker in 1884 and has been reelected at every session of parliament since. Sensitiveness of Worshipers.

The spirit of the Spanish cardinal Rodina Rigo as it comes to us over the question of precedence at the funeral of the late cardinal archbishop of Seville, recalls the spirit of the ancient Pharisees, that desired the highest seats in the synagogues and the uppermost rooms at feasts. There was much wisdom in the saying of the master who said: "Sit not down in the highest room, lest a more honorable than thou be bidden of him, and he that bade thee and him come and say to thee, Give this man place; and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room." Cardinal Rigo's sensitiveness on the point of precedence is not unlike that of the Pharisees, who loved the uppermost rooms at feasts and the highest seats in the synagogues.—Boston Herald.

A GROWING INDUSTRY

MARKETING FOR PETS IN THE LOUISIANA BAYOU REGION.

The South Waking Up to Its Possibilities. Thousands of Acres Heavily Timbered. Massive Hard Pine Trees Straight as Arrows Find a Foreign Market.

[Special Correspondence.]

LAKE CHARLES, La., April 1.—The south is waking up to its possibilities with an energy that is likely to make New England's pristine pale look to it. The development going on throughout the cotton states is bound to make clearly established fact in Louisiana, the land of the Acadian and creole, of a very young plantation life and of France in bloom. The northern emigration is fast transforming its home, business enterprises and social life, bringing the ear with alertness its rich material resources and waking it to the opinion that awaits intelligent endeavor.

Nowhere is this seen more than in the lumber industry, which has suddenly sprung into prominence throughout the state's archery its resources of hard pine forests have stood unnoticed; the immense trees, straight as the most perfect arrow, with clear, clean trunks reaching high in air and the symmetry of their forms marred only by the feebleness of spanish moss clinging to the branches, have attracted no monkhopper, nor have the now residences of southern cities drawn upon them for material, it being rather the policy of the builders to ship lumber from the far northern mills at an added expense of freight and handling.

Here at Lake Charles there have been erected 15 sawmills, and at other points along the gulf are a dozen more, all employing up the magnificent hard pine logs into lumber for assorted sizes and for various uses. Up in the northern part of the state are the forests, and they are a sight to make the builder's heart beat faster. Nowhere can be found handsomer, straighter trees, and with their roots fastened deep in the rich southern soil they are standing theirs and rear aspiring the woodsman's axe.

nominal premier and actual dictator of Cape Colony.

Mr. Rhodes is a prominent and politician and is the author of a hotly colonialized "dream of empire," in his capacity of promoter and politician he has shaped the legislation of the colony in behalf of the diamond mining syndicate, regardless of the rights and interests of the people.

In his capacity of director of the British South Africa company he controlled a royal "charter of empire," which beguiled many British investors. When these investors began to grow restive under repeated assessments, the Hon. Cecil Rhodes, like the practical man that he is, proceeded to put his dream into execution. He waged a war of conquest against the free and independent Matabeles, and after a swollen gun campaign of wholesale slaughter plundered the British dog in Bulawayo and turned British miners loose in the rich goldfields of Matabeleland.

Sir Henry Brougham Loch, governor of Cape Colony and imperial commissioner for South Africa, being a man of conscience, felt some repugnance against this wanton war and relieved to hurl himself wholly to the munitions policy of his premier. So the loss turned the governor down. He was subjected to constant affronts during the campaign and has now been removed from office through the influence of Cecil Rhodes.

Sir Hercules Robinson, who has been appointed to succeed Sir Henry Loch, was governor of Cape Colony from 1880 to 1889 and sustains business relations with Cecil Rhodes that preclude the possibility of any differences with that imperial statesman. He was born in 1824 and educated in the Royal Military college at Sandhurst. He resigned his commission in the army in 1846 and entered the civil service. He was appointed president of Montserrat in 1852 and has since been governor of Hongkong, Ceylon, New South Wales, New Zealand and Cape Colony. Sir Hercules will take office in June. The governor of Cape Colony receives a salary of $40,000 a year.

A Widespread Superstition.

"The Evil Eye" is the title of an interesting volume that has appeared in London, containing many curious facts about a widespread superstition. Annettes intended to counteract the effects of the evil eye have been found in abundance among the most polished relics of the earliest Egyptian dynasties, dating from the year 4,000 years before the Christian era. Home engaged a survival of popularity throughout many countries as relatives of the jettatura, or cast of ill luck, that it was believed persons had the power of projecting from their eyeballs, consciously or unconsciously. Other preventative emblems became locally famous, as the beetle in Egypt, the serpent in west Africa, the phallus in portal in India, Etruria and Sardinia, the goat, cricket and dragon's head in Greece, the toadstool, open and one horse in Sicily, and the eagle's beak and skull of pigs and fish in England.

PEARCE AND PLENTY

WHERE THE POOREST AND THE WORST CAN EAT AS LONDON.

Dark Scenes by Day—Under a Restaurant Where a Meal Can Be Had for a Penny. The Bloody Work Begins at Three Bangs. A Place Where All Are Suspected.

LONDON, March 5.—[Special.]—Far from the great thoroughfares, in the center of the most crowded part of New York, is the region of Bandit's Roost. It is quite the most dangerous locality in every town. In Boston it is a part of the unlighted Bandon and its inhabitants are thieves and cutthroats who live by what they can take from others. In Chicago and others where I have been it is the same. The police are afraid to keep the light on.

To the right as you go into the region is Lafayette square, and to the left is Broadway. The evening papers and the cabs and omnibuses turn to the left, but the traffic goes to the right. There are not as many carriages in the square as there were two years ago, but there is a constant stream of vehicles and pedestrians. Two years ago there was a fountain in the center of the square, but it was torn down to make room for the statue of Washington, which now stands there. The fountain was a favorite resort of the poor, who used to wash their children in the basin and fill their pails with water. Now they have to go to the pumps in the streets.

Bandit's Roost is a region of tall tenements, which are packed from cellar to garret with the poor. Many of the houses are old and tumble-down, and the rooms are dark and dismal. Some of the tenements are new, and the rooms are light and airy, but they are rented at high prices, and only the well-to-do poor can afford to live in them. The streets are filled with ragged children, who play in the gutters and on the sidewalks. Hundreds of them are to be seen at all hours of the day, and they are always quarreling and fighting. Their parents are poor, dirty, and slatternly looking, and they, too, are always fighting. Drunken men and women are to be seen on every corner, and the sidewalks are littered with broken bottles and pieces of glass.

Many of the houses in Bandit's Roost are tenanted entirely by thieves and prostitutes. Some of the tenements are inhabited by both sexes, and in others the thieves live on the lower floors and the prostitutes above. Some of the houses are used as assignation houses, and others are the resort of beggars and tramps. Some of the tenements are lodging houses, where a bed can be had for a penny. A whole room, with bed and bedding, can be had for 2d. A bed in a dormitory can be had for 1d. A penny will get you all you wish to eat. The quality is not the best in the world, but to the people that come to get quantity is the thing.

Hanging above the main door is the sign, "Pence and Plenty." It is a bad pun, to be sure, but to the heart of the English from high to low the pun is very near. The point is on the face of it, and is quick, and success only depends upon how it is told.

Little school lads come here at noon and get a half penny cup of tea or coffee or cocoa, as the case may be, to drink along with their lunch. Now and then two of them will club in a single cup together, each dropping in the penny in turn. They range from 5 to 10 years old, and some of their heads barely reach to the top of the counter when they are giving their orders. Their lunch, which usually consists of a couple of slices of bread and butter, is given to them by their mothers in the morning before they leave for school. This is wrapped up in paper and stowed away in the bigger pocket, along with marbles, string, a peg top and other treasures. They are interesting little fellows, and it is a pleasure to study them. Yet should there be seen the eyes of one of them upon with delight yesterday when I bought him a big piece of currant cake. He told me all about himself in three minutes between bites.

The men and big boys that come here at noon are nearly all covered with the grime and blackness of the neighboring workshops. Like the school lads, some of them bring along their own lunches. All owners have the privilege of doing this if they give an order at the counter, however small.

A Deadly Monotony.

They are a strange, haggard looking people, these London toilers. The wear and tear of life in this city of cities show in their faces. They have that peculiar sooner look which belongs to certain habitual dwellers in all great cities —that look which presages the horror of revolution.

In the restaurant they talk over the affairs of the workshop and its relation to themselves—what they are doing, how they are doing it, how much a week they get and so on. If you say a word to them of America, however, they listen eagerly. They look upon it as a favorable land for the workingman, and they long to go to it. I find that the fact of their hearing bad reports about it now and then doesn't bother them at all. I guess the real cause of the wish to leave their own country is the deadly monotony of their lives and the unconquerable instinct which causes or less in every man.

They are not so big or so strong looking as the average American workingman, nor are they as intelligent.

There is a statue of Queen Victoria in this restaurant. It is life size and stands in a niche in the wall all over to the left. Near it is a picture of a Chinese maiden looking unutterably sweet and sad, presumably for the return of her lover. On the walls are temperance and godly inscriptions such as, "Drink not intoxicating drink," "Christ is a teacher," "Trust in the Lord" and so forth. High up over the counter and nearly opposite to the "Trust in the Lord" inscription is a nineteen inscription which reads, "Who gives a penny?"

No Chance Taken.

It would be impossible for a desperately hungry man to get a meal in this restaurant without paying for it. You pay for your food in the counter you get it—right on the nail. No chances are taken. It isn't like it is in America, where you get your food and pay the owner afterward in case of need. The London system is more principled, and if not the cause of it, pays better. That is much to the point, and every time it is well to do that. And in the long run principle pays the best. And in the long run principle that recognizes the brotherhood of man is the principle that pays the most profits. A man is a man, and a penny is a penny, and the man who gives the penny gets the penny's worth of food. Arrangements of this kind are the outcome of humane principle. A penny is a penny, and the man who gives the penny gets the penny's worth of food. Arrangements of this kind are the outcome of humane principle. A penny is a penny, and the man who gives the penny gets the penny's worth of food.

Views of Two Well Known Men on the Coming Presidential Campaign.

"If the Republican party declares in favor of free silver, I will not be a candidate for president."—William McKinley, Jr.

"These are the words of the foremost Republican candidate for the nomination, and they were utter d in Thomasville, Ga., a few days since, under circumstances that called for such a declaration.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The progenitors of gold and silver taken for 4,000 years, as long as we have history upon the matter, remain practically the same. For a period of ten years or more one or the other may show a slight change, but the ratio recovers surprisingly at 15½ or 16 to 1, and if gold and silver are to exchange, as they for many hundreds of years in the past it is difficult to see what has occurred to prevent exchangability now, provided all nations are willing to so declare. It is an invariable law that where there are two everlasting currencies the best succeeds is driven out. If the United States should attempt to carry silver alone, the United States would be deprived of all her gold and then would have no more commercial strength as other countries to carry the silver that she had taken in exchange for her gold. It is well to bear in mind that not 6 cents in ten of the business of this country is done with either silver or gold, all the rest being credit. That is true the quality of the credit of the commercial nations is so many it requires to handle its business.—Chas. J. Hull, President Great Northern Railroad, in St. Paul Pioneer Press.

THE GOSPEL SHIP.

"Come Thou and All Thy Family into the Ark."

Get Safely Housed for Eternity If We Get Into the Ark of God's Mercy It Will Be Through Christ, the Door. Dr. Talmage's Sermon.

The text selected by Dr. Talmage last Sunday was Genesis vii., 1: "Then shalt come into the ark, thou and all thy sons and thy wife and thy sons' wives with thee."

In this day of the steamships Lucania and Majestic and the Paris I will show you a ship that in many respects eclipsed them all, and which sailed out, an ocean underneath and heaven above falling upon it. Infidel scientists ask us to believe that in the formation of the earth there have been a half dozen deluges, and yet they are not willing to believe the Bible story of one deluge.

In what way the catastrophe came we know not—whether by the stroke of a comet, or by flashes of lightning, changing the air into water, or by a stroke of the hand of God, like the stroke of the ax between the horns of the ox, the earth staggered. To meet the catastrophe God ordered a great ship built. It was to be without prow, for it was to sail to no shore. It was to be without helm, for no human hand should guide it. It was not one structure, probably as large as two or three modern steamers. It was the Great Eastern of olden time.

The ship is done. The door is open. The lizards crawl in. The cattle walk in. The grasshoppers hop in. The birds fly in. The invitation goes forth to Noah, "Come thou and all thy house into the ark." Just one human family embark on the strange voyage, and I hear the doors slam shut. A great storm sweeps along the hills and bends the cedars until all the branches snap in the gale. There is a moan in the wind like unto the moan of a dying world. The blackness of the heavens is shattered by the flare of the lightnings, that look down into the waters and throw a ghastliness on the face of the mountains. How strange it looks! How unbefitting the air seems! The big drops of rain begin to splash upon the upturned faces of those who are watching the tempest. Crash go the rocks in convulsion. Boom! go the bursting heavens. The inhabitants of the earth, instead of flying to house top and mountain top, as men have fancied, sit down in dumb, white horror to die. For when God grinds mountains to pieces and lets the ocean dip its cable there is no place for men to fly to. See the ark pitch and tumble in the surf, while from its windows the passengers look out upon the shipwreck of a race and the carcasses of a dead world. Woe to the mountain! Woe to the sea!

I am no alarmist. When on the 20th of September, after the wind has for three days been blowing from the northwest, you prophesy that the equinoctial storm is coming, you simply state a fact not to be disputed. Neither am I an alarmist when I say that a storm is coming, compared with which Noah's deluge was but an April shower, and that it is wisest and safest for you and for me to get safely housed for eternity. The invitation that went forth to Noah sounds in our ears, "Come thou and all thy house into the ark."

Well, how did Noah and his family come into the ark? Did they climb in at the window, or come down the roof? No; they went through the door. And just so, if we get into the ark of God's mercy, it will be through Christ, the door. The entrance to the ark of old must have been a very large one. We know that it was from the fact that there were monster animals in the earlier ages, and in order to get them into the ark, two and two, according to the Bible statement, the door must have been very wide and very high. So the door into the mercy of God is a large door. We go in, not two and two, but by hundreds, and by thousands and by millions. Yea, all the nations of the earth may go in, 10,000,000 abreast!

The door of the ancient ark was in the side. So now it is through the side of Christ. His pierced side, the wide open side, the heart side—that we enter. Alas, the Roman soldier, thrusting his spear into the Saviour's side, expected only to let the blood out, but he opened the way to let all the world in! Oh, what a bound Gospel to proclaim! If a man is about to give a festival entertainment, he issues 200 or 300 invitations, carefully put up and directed to the particular persons whom he wishes to entertain. But God, our Father, makes a banquet and goes out to the front door of Heaven and stretches out his hands and his head and his heart, and a voice that penetrates the Hindoo jungle, and the Greenland ice castle, and Brazilian grove, and English factory, and American home, cries out, "Come, for all things are now ready!" It is a wide door! The old cross has been taken apart, and its two pieces are set up for the doorposts, to be apart that all the world can come in. Rings center treasures on days of great rejoicing. So Christ, our King, comes and scatters the jewels of Heaven.

Rowland Hill said that he hoped to get into Heaven through the cracks of the door. But he was not obliged thus to go in. After having preached the Gospel in Surrey chapel, going up toward Heaven the gate-keeper cried: "Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates, and let this man come in!" The flying thief went in. Richard Baxter and Robert Newton went in. Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America may get go through this wide door without crowding. But every one—all conditions, all ranks, all people! Is Hatteer said that this truth was worth coming on all the way from Rome to Jerusalem, but I think it worth creeping all around the globe and all around the heavens, that "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Whosoever will, let him come through the large door. Archangedes wanted a fulcrum on which to place his lever, and then he said he could move the world. Calvary is the fulcrum, and the cross of Christ is the lever, and by that power all mankind shall get to God.

Further, it is a door that swings both ways. I do not know whether the door of the ancient ark was lifted or rolled on hinges, but this door of Christ swings both ways. It swings out toward all our woes; it swings in toward the raptures of Heaven. It swings in to let us in; it swings out to let our ministering ones come out. All are one in Christ—Christians on earth and saints in Heaven.

Other doors of the building God.
All that are ever made,
Part of the lord-heaven or the God,
And fact are one and same.

Swing in, O blessed door, until all the earth shall be on and live. Swing out until all the heavens come forth to celebrate the victory!

But further, it is a door with footsteps. The Bible says of Noah: "The Lord shut him in." A vessel without lookouts or doors would not be a safe vessel to go in. When Noah and his family had got the last thing of the kind and the last pair of the last kind of creeping creature, and the last kind of flying creature, and the last kind of beast, and the last kind of cattle, and the last kind of everything that was to be saved, and had gone in, then Noah, with hammer and nails, fastened the door. Then the heavy surge of the sea would have washed them in, and they might as well have perished on the rock as be safe in the ark. "The Lord shut him in." Oh, the perfect safety of the ark! The surf of the sea and the lightnings of the sky may be twisted into a garland of snow and fire over the ark, but those in the ark are safe in darkness, but once in the ark all is well. "God shut him in." Three cubits above the flood was a window in the ark, but Noah did not look out of it. He looked out of it when the flood was gone, but not when it was coming. Three cubits above the flood was a door

RAGE FOR SPANGLES.

OLIVE HARPER IS UNABLE TO SEE THE END OF IT.

They Are Seen on Almost Every Garment and Seem to Be Growing Larger Hand Some Gowns for the Horse Fashions. He Peacock Triumphs.

(Special to Sentinel.)

NEW YORK, April 1.—It is impossible to imagine just how far this sudden rage for spangles will go. They are, as I said before, seen on almost every garment, but the most of them have been small and of brilliant hues. Now we are shown dark, nearly an inch in diameter. These are strung on strings and their peacock tint against the dark red whiteness they are to be displayed over is unflagging. The other dress had clusters of three lines, each four inches long, set at irregular intervals over the dress skirt. The center line was set about an inch lower than the others. The dress on which these were placed was a rose green peau de soie, with a wide circular skirt. These large spangles are called sequins, but are made of burnished metal and have blue and green lights. There were but two clusters of these spangles on each side of the waist, almost touching the draped belt. On the front of the waist were two narrow fancies of gold, formed of braid, forming points. The rest of the waist was entirely plain. At the neck was a stock of green silk muslin. There were lace cuffs to the sleeves. The pattern in this lace was followed with green and russet gold floss silk, and it made a very effective arrangement. This gown was intended for a visiting costume. The dainty little bonnet worn with it was of natural straw edged with pink pearl beads. On the front was a very full peasant bow of lace above which were set several tulips and their buds.

These short capes are made of two circles, cut down sufficiently to bring them over, and the upper edge is then plaited to the small round yoke. They look well, but are small protection in a windy day.

I saw another very striking and stylish outdoor costume. The skirt was of the heavy ribbed crepon in two shades of brown. The skirt was a medium godet style. The waistband was the crepon laid a gore of embroidering emerald bronze shade that showed dimly between the seal and tan and made it very rich. With this was worn a tight fitting jacket of tan cloth box stitched on each seam. Down each seam there was also a piping of blue brown velvet. The pockets were pointless and partially covered with velvet. There was a brown velvet yoke on the jacket which was perforated in a fancy pattern. The collar was of the tan cloth partially covered with velvet, and this collar ended with revers trimmed in the same way. There were perforated velvet plastrons on the sleeves too. The bonnet was white chip, bordered with fur and having black tips and gold colored aigret. So much for out of door apparel.

For house attire there are many beautiful things, the newest of which are the sicilienne and flowered poiret de chevre. Brilliantine is also shown as the foundation of many of the newest gowns. It always was pretty, and it is prettier than ever now, as the finish is truer and has a lustre.

There was a gown of dark gray brilliantine made with a very much distended skirt, plainly finished. There was a crushed bulk of ruby velvet and a trimming on the bodice made of ruby velvet ribbon. With this was a detached collarette of ruby velvet. The sleeves were simple gigots. This gown had an elaborate appearance, while in reality it was of the simplest. The ruby and gray make an excellent combination for any one young enough to wear it. The other gown for home wear was of cotel gray whipcord, very closely woven, so that it was almost as lustrous as silk. The skirt hung in loose, natural folds in the back and fitted in front. Across the bottom there was an embroidered pattern done in black and silver. The same design was wrought upon the sleeves, with incrustations of metal and lace of the black. Around the throat there are simulated figures of white lace, and a wide bow and ends of silver gray watered ribbon finishes the elegant costume. I should have mentioned that the waist is a plain gathered one, and that around the neck and wrists are bands of peacock blue. These peacock trimmings will probably prove a vogue, as they are the most effective manner imitating the luster of the particular spangles

AN EXCITING RACE.

A Pennsylvania and a Nickel Plate Train Ran One.

The Passengers Take in the Situation and Grow Intensely Excited—Other and Short News.

Of the many exciting races between Pennsylvania and Nickel Plate trains the one of last Thursday evening was by far the most exciting. The race was between Valparaiso and Hobart, a distance of eleven miles, and it was covered in that many minutes, including a slow-up at Wheeler. William Turner was at the throttle of engine No. 222, which was hauling Pennsylvania passenger train No 9, and Dennis McCarthy manipulated the throttle of engine 155, which hauled the Nickel Plate train, No 5. Mr. Turner's train consisted of six coaches, while Mr. McCarthy's train had only five, but the difference in the size of the trains was offset by the difference in the size of the engines, No 222 being much larger than No. 155. The Pennsylvania train pulled out of Valparaiso about two car-lengths ahead, and went into Hobart about the same distance behind, losing four car-lengths in making the run. In the start the passengers discovered that there was to be a race and they became greatly excited. Windows went up, feminine heads were thrust out and handkerchiefs fluttered from fair hands while the masculine sex rushed to the platforms and added to the excitement by holloing like Comanches. A stock drover on the Nickel Plate train, who had a voice which would make Fog Horn Kelley envious, rushed to the front coach and from the platform shouted to Denny McCarthy to "Beat that train and the cigars are on me!" And he was as good as his word, for at Hobart he sent forward, not one cigar but a whole box last evening the Nickel Plate boys were feeling quite jubilant over the race, but not a word had the Pennsylvania boys to say about it. The tables may be turned, however, the next race.

BRAKEMAN HURT AT CONTINENTAL

Yesterday Brakeman F. A. Vroman, of the east Nickel Plate local, Fort Wayne to Leipsic, had his right hand mashed to a pulp while making a coupling, at Continental, Ohio. Another brakeman was sent out to take Mr. Vroman's place, and that gentleman was brought in and is now at his home on Center street, under Dr. J. M. Dimon's care. Vroman commenced work for the Nickel Plate last July and since then has met with three accidents.

YARD CONDUCTOR KILLED.

At 7 o'clock last evening Jerry Finn, a Pennsylvania yard conductor at Lima, Ohio, died from injuries received three hours before while switching cars. Both his lower limbs were crushed and the surgeons were waiting for him to recover partially from the shock, when they expected to amputate one of the limbs. But the poor fellow did not revive as expected. He leaves a wife and children. Mr. Finn was well known to the trainmen on the middle district and his sad fate was quite a shock to them.

BRIEF MENTION.

J. Murphy, boilermaker at the Pittsburg shops, is sick and off duty.

Machinist Fred Geerkens, of the Pittsburg shops, is suffering with the grip.

After a rest of a few days Nickel Plate Conductor Beidler took his train out last night.

Nickel Plate Conductor R. C. Reffelts has returned to his duties, after a few days' absence.

The Pennsylvania master mechanics, who were here two days, left for their homes last night.

August Becker is building a store room adjoining his drug store building on Fairfield avenue.

Yesterday Henry Karkum, of the Base blacksmith shop, sprained one of his ankles and is off duty.

H. Minnich is sick and H. Brake has recovered from a sickness. Both are painters employed at the Pittsburg shops.

Additions to two of the houses on Wallace street, owned by Engineer Dennis McCarthy, are in progress of erection.

Mrs. Henry Honeck, wife of the boss carpenter at the Base works, is very ill, but she is reported a little better this morning.

James Craig and James Powers, of the Rhinesmith & Simonson factory, are off duty today to look after private business.

J. W. Barrett and G. H. White, Nickel Plate trainmen, have returned to their duties on the road after a few days' absence.

Harry Gragg and John Ruppert, late of the electric works, have gone to Plymouth to work in the Smalley bicycle factory.

Engineer John Carroll, of the Wabash, had engine No. 19 out for a trial today. This engine has just been turned out of the shops.

Engineer and Mrs. Frank Carman will go to Chicago tonight to visit relatives. Mr. Carman is a switch engineer in the Wabash yards.

Mr. Doermer, father of the Misses Lida and Anna Doermer, of the electric works, is lying quite ill at his farm home, a short distance east of the city.

Only one engine, No. 43, was turned out of the Pittsburg shops during the week ending today, and only one, No. 113, was taken in for repairs during the week.

The "Brownies," better known as the Frenchtown base ball club, was reorganized last night under the name of the "Cuban Ole." Emil Rost was chosen captain.

Theodore Kucher, assistant erecting gang foreman in the Pittsburg machine shop, will take a position as fireman on the road Monday. This is only temporary, being merely a schooling for some other position in the service of the company. Joseph Harris has just completed such a course and Monday will resume work in the machine shop.

J. G. Gehring, machinist, has gone to Andrews to work two weeks in the Wabash shops.

Andrew Taylor has recovered from the grip, after a week's illness. He is a brass moulder in the Wabash shops.

C. S. Knight and J. J. Wood will leave tonight for New York on business for the Electric corporation.

C. S. Broughton has been appointed district passenger agent of the Wisconsin Central, with headquarters at Pittsburg, vice W. P. Foster, who retires on account of ill health.

Daniel Rice, formerly of this city, but recently living at Leipsic, Ohio, moved yesterday to Bellevue. He is a brakeman on the local freight between Bellevue and Leipsic.

Frank Lash, a spoke tuner who has been working here for some time, returned to Indianapolis today and will take his old place in the Standard Wheel works in that city.

Yesterday the Electric corporation shipped two incandescent plants, one of 1,000 light capacity to Winchester, Ind., and the other of 1,500 light capacity to Kosciusko, Conn.

Engineers Kirby Jackson, Amos Sline and R. O. Bradley, of the Pittsburg, are off duty, the two former on account of private business and the latter on account of sickness.

Robert Douglass, of the Wabash ticket office, has returned from Three Mile Bay, N. Y., where he was called a few weeks ago by the illness of his mother. He left the lady still ill, but much improved.

Machinist John Casey, of the Base shops, is off duty nursing a couple of sore fingers, the result of too close an intimacy with some cog gearing. He is not badly injured and will probably report for duty next Monday.

Wabash engine 225 was turned out of the machine shop this morning and is now in the hands of the painters. During the week Nos. 1 and 25 were also turned out and Nos. 22, 64, 97, 335 and 429 were taken in for repairs.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, it is stated, is rapidly regaining the membership it had before the Debs strike. The new officials are doing excellent work in bringing back those who then dropped out, especially on the Pacific coast.

William Bowlking, of the Base blacksmith shop, has taken a few days' lay off to get the masons and carpenters started upon his new house. Mr. Boulking is unmarried, but the fact that he is building a house is taken as evidence that he has some notion of becoming a Benedict.

About sixty Red Men left on No 6, over the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western, at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Baldwin, where they will institute a lodge tonight. In the party were about thirty fire employes of the Pittsburg shops, where the Red Men are numerous. At midnight the Findlay will send out a train to bring the party home.

Wednesday evening, May 8, Kekionga division No 31, ladies' Auxiliary to the Order of Railway Conductors, will give its first annual ball at Columbus hall. Admission will be only by invitation card, presented by some member of the auxiliary, who puts her signature thereon. This ball will be one of the greatest social events of the season.

That Charles Yohey is alive and well today is due to the great presence of mind and prompt action of Fireman H. Rombke, at the Pittsburg planing mills. Charles is assistant fireman, and while thus engaged, his clothing caught fire and in an instant he was enveloped in flames. Mr. Rombke threw the young man into a pile of green shavings and turned a stream of water from a hose upon him, extinguishing the fire before any serious damage resulted.

Passengers are charged thirty cents over the new St. Louis Merchants' bridge against twenty-five cents over the old Terminal company's bridge, and the charge is creating a good deal of dissatisfaction. Of course, a through passenger is not affected, as his ticket takes him to the Union station, St. Louis, but persons traveling on short tickets and holding mileage books must put up the thirty cents.

Flitter—Shi Not that. I thought you knew that I'm not married. But (triumphantly) I'm engaged to be.

Flutter (doubtfully)—But really I don't see that I can congratulate you. You know I'm not a particular believer in marriage.

Flitter—Ah, but you will congratulate me when you hear all.

Flutter—Now don't, my dear boy. Don't go into raptures and rave about sapphire eyes, golden hair, sweet disposition and all that. I couldn't stand it. Really I could not.

Flitter (with a hurt tone)—Look here, Flutter. Do I look like a person who would rave about such trash? No, sir. She has no golden hair nor sapphire eyes. What her exact disposition is I do not know nor care. She is not particularly young nor particularly old. But she has a profession in which she is an adept. Day by day I have watched her in her glorious career and seen her form grow. No, sir, good looks are nothing to me, but ability everything.

Flitter (puzzled)—What are you driving at?

Flitter (proudly)—I am engaged to marry the famous authoress of "How to Live Comfortably on $300 a Year," "The Science of Inexpensive Cookery," "Children, and How to Bring Them Up Without a Nurse," etc. Besides this, she is president of the Antibard Cooking class, vice president of a woman's building and loan association and a director of The Training School For the Improvement of Domestic Servants.

Flutter (firmly)—My dear fellow, I must still decline to congratulate you. My wife attended her cooking class.—Brooklyn Life.

Royal Egg Muffins.

One quart flour, 1 tablespoonful sugar, 1 tablespoonful salt, 1 large tablespoonful lard, 2 teaspoonful Royal Baking Powder, 3 eggs, 1½ pint milk. Sift together flour, sugar, salt, and powder, rub in the lard cold; add the beaten eggs and milk; mix quickly into a smooth batter, a little firmer than for griddle cakes; fill cold, carefully greased muffin pans, bake in hot oven 15 minutes.

"Poor Man's" Corn Cream.

One pint corn meal, 1 pint flour, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2 teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, ½ pint each of milk and water. Sift the corn meal, flour, salt and powder together. Add the milk and water, mix into a firm batter; grease well greased, cold gem pans. Bake in a well heated oven 15 minutes

Breakfast Biscuit.

Take one quart sweet milk, ½ cupful melted butter, a little salt, 2 tablespoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, flour enough to make a stiff batter, do not kneed into dough, but drop into buttered tins from a spoon; bake in a hot oven—unless it is hot they will not be light and tender.

Crushed Wheat Griddle Cakes.

One cupful crushed wheat, 1½ pints flour, 1 teaspoonful brown sugar, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2 teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, 1 egg, 1 pint of milk. Boil 1 cupful crushed wheat in 1 pint of water 1 hour, then dilute with beaten egg and milk. Sift together flour, sugar, salt, and powder; add to crushed wheat preparation when quite cold, mix into smooth batter. Bake on hot griddle; brown delicately on both sides. Serve with Hygienic Cream Sauce

Indian Griddle Cakes.

Two thirds quart corn meal, 1 quart flour, 1 teaspoonful brown sugar, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2 heaping teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk. Sift together corn meal, flour, salt, sugar, and powder, add beaten eggs and milk, mix into a smooth batter. Bake on very hot griddle to a nice brown. Serve with molasses or maple syrup.

Rice Flour Crackers.

Proceed as directed for corn starch crackers; substitute rice flour for starch.

NOTHING but Royal Baking Powder

Will make the biscuit, cake and pastry so light, sweet, tender, delicious and wholesome.

There are many mixtures offered as a substitute. None of them is the same in composition or effectiveness, or will make such fine food, or is so economical.

Besides, the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, containing neither lime, alum nor ammonia.

There is but one Royal Baking Powder, and there is no substitute for it.

MUNYON'S
GREAT VICTORY
ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS BEATEN.

Yesterday's Sales of Munyon's Remedies Never Before Equalled in the History of the Drug Trade.

They Are Now Established in More Than 2,000 Fort Wayne Homes.

Ninety-Six Cases Out of Every One Hundred Are Cured by Munyon's New System of Treating Disease.

On the 18th and 19th of last month, Professor Munyon distributed 5,000 bottles of his Rheumatism Cure absolutely free to the citizens of Fort Wayne, requiring those who received them to report the results of its use and promising to publish the same. Up to this time, now sixteen days since the distribution, 962 persons have reported, all of whom say they have been cured or greatly benefited, except twenty-eight, who say they have received no benefit.

During this time this demand for his remedies has increased from day to day, until on yesterday, all previous records were surpassed. Why? Because they cure the diseases they are prepared for, and cured patients are the best advertisements.

If you are afflicted with any disease examine carefully Munyon's "Guide to Health," select the remedy that fits your symptoms, then step into your druggist's and buy it. Read the directions carefully and use the medicine accordingly and be cured.

Price, 25c.

Munyon's Nerve Cure cures all the symptoms of nervous exhaustion, such as depressed spirits, failure of memory, restless and sleepless nights, pains in the head and dizziness. It cures general debility, stimulates and strengthens the nerves and tones up the whole body. Price, 25c.
